Award-Winning Folk Music Set For Moore Auditorium Thursday

Award-winning folk music will be featured by the Beers Family Thursday at 8 p.m. in Moore Auditorium. Evelyn, Evelyn and Martha Beers have won "TV-Radio Mirror" and other awards for their folk songs. They have also performed on several television programs including the Today and Tonight Shows, and have been featured at many folk festivals.

Included in the program will be an Anglo-American minrel song; English, Scottish and American airs; fiddle songs; fiddle ballads; guess the same tunes; jigs; buck and wing; fiddle and an American Shaker song.

The Beers are especially known for their unusual techniques and sounds. Some of these include: "psaltry and dulcimer playing, drum and 'fiddlesticks,' plus the guitar, banjo and fiddle are features included in the program.

The music in the program is from historic fiddle traditions, authentic songs, stories and customs of six generations of the Beers family, dating back to the American Revolution.

One of the highlights of the show will be the psaltry with its music-box tones. Robert Beers has been writing music for the instrument since 1954.

The psaltry was originally conceived by the Arabs people and later developed by the Greeks who devised complex bridges, added strings, and made a "consonant" tuning system. Metal strings were developed for the instrument in 1340.

Another unusual technique in the program is an ancient fiddle tuned in "F." This technique causes the fiddle to emit a strange drone which helps to set the Beers music apart from all other folk groups.

Other Events

Duplicate bridge today will kick off this week's union activities said Marie Williams, program director of the University Union.

Tomorrow there will be a book review and the classic film, "Queen Christina." Thursday the Beers family, traditional folk musicians, will be presented in Moore Auditorium.

The weekend activities will include a campus movie, a canoe trip Saturday and a dance in the ballroom with music by the "Checkmates." Monday will be a forum in the browsing lounge of the Union with President John Champion speaking.

In a rare piece of political wizardry, rare at least for an FSU delegation, the Seminole contingent to the annual SUSGA convention in Gatlinburg, Tenn. adroitly engineered the election of FSU's Palmer Williams to the vice-chairmanship of the State of Florida.

The convention, which was scheduled over the weekend, also saw both the old and new FSU student body presidents at the convention as well as some fancy ice skating by the new attorney general.

SUSGA stands for the Southern University Student Government Association. The organization is composed of the student governments of the major colleges and universities below the Mason-Dixon Line and east of the Mississippi River.

SUSGA is designed as an organization where member schools may compare ideas and learn new methods of more efficiently serving their students through student government.

The FSU contingent was headed by new student body President Jim Grant, John Martin, the old president, also traveled to the convention, reportedly to call a meeting of a newly formed Florida student organization designed for political lobbying of education called SAPHE. SAPHE proved to be a controversial point later in the convention when the University of Tampa somehow obtained material on the organization and accused FSU and its candidate Williams of leaving them out of the organization.

Other official FSU delegates were Williams, Nancy Ashley, George Beal, Hines Boyd, Erik Collins, Larry Gonzalez, Bill Hollister, Jennifer Haws, Lief Erickson, Joyce Killian, and Susan Richardson.

Dr. Reid Montgomery, long time SUSGA official, and Dean of Students Harry P. Day also participated in the conference proceedings.

SUSGA is ruled by a combination of students and faculty advisors. Each state selects one student vice chairman from the member schools of the state and a general student chairman is elected by the convention as a whole.

Last year without prior planning the FSU delegation ran a candidate for the general chairmanship against another delegate from Florida, Tampa's John Hines who was already a vice chairman and lost 57-7.

This year the Grant-led delegation carefully planned its strategy and instead of unexpectedly taking on the entire convention concentrated on winning the state competition.

The FSU delegates were assigned to the task of winning over enough of the other representatives in the state to elect Williams.

Florida's Bruce Culppeper agreed to back Williams in return for an increased amount of cooperation between the two schools which he said would in turn lead to better relationships between all the schools in the state.

Jacksonville University felt that FSU had helped them to win the convention site for next year while Stet-

Yes Sir, Trouble Right Here In Tallahassee

MANY STUDENTS

...waited in line over an hour for registration last Friday only to find the lines inside Tully were just as bad if not worse. To help alleviate the situation the registration period was extended through today.

DR. GRIFFITH PUGH

will review "The Poetry of Ogden" tomorrow at 4 p.m. in Moore Auditorium.

Good Question

In the past two years, the Registrar's Office has received much praise from the students who were able to efficiently complete registration in a minimum amount of time due to the program of pre-registration.

Unfortunately, this is not the case this trimester. Friday, students who wished to take a load of six hours had to stand in line for an average of two hours.

In previous years, appointments times were given to all students whether they were coming back for the third trimester or not. This proved effective for the students who did return.

No appointment times were given this year. This obviously was the cause of the extremely lengthy lines existing outside of Tully Gym Friday.

Once inside, the students did not know where to go or what to do. The traditional diagrams of the required route to follow were unavailable Friday. Signs stating directions were obviously missing.

New students waited in line with incompleting cards. Once up to the front of a line, they were requested to fill out the cards much to the irritation of the students behind them in line who had to wait the additional time while cards were filled out at the registrar's desk. Why weren't these students requested to stop out of line and return to a desk to fill these cards out properly?

Another major tie-up occurred at the point in which fees were to be paid. There was some question as to why one had to stand in one line to only have their cards and checks inspected then go to another line to turn the checks in.

Quite obviously, registration was understaffed. Not enough people were behind the desks. Never before have students heard announced at registration that workers were needed. In previous years, students have had to sign up to work at registration and they reported in advance for a short but necessary period of training.

Possibly more students registered than expected. The question we want to know is why didn't the Registrar's Office know how many students to expect and have a staff available to take care of this number? This seemed to be the question asked by all students who registered Friday. It seems that the question was rightfully asked.

Library School Gets Lectureship

The Library School announced today that it is the recipient of an endowed lectureship to be known as Beulah Cole Marshall Lectures in Librarianship.

The lectureship is being established by John Marshall, an alumnus of the Library School, class of 1951, in memory of his grandmother whose two grandsons are both librarians.

and former students of Louisiana State University. John David Marshall, the son of John David Marshall, the dean of the FSU Library School, is head of acquisitions of the University of Georgia Libraries, and the grandson, David Marshall, is director of the Nashville Public Library System.

The first lecture probably will be given in 1957.

son University's president was a personal friend of Erickson and Miss Howe.

The key vote was cast by the University of Miami after some political bargaining over the site of the state convention for next year which was agreed to be Miami.

These four votes, together with FSU, were enough to beat Tampa's George Watson who also received the vote of the University of South Florida.

Florida Presbyterian abstained. "I feel the election of Palmer typified the success of the entire FSU delegation to SUSGA," said Groves.

"Our next year's relationship with SUSGA certainly holds great promise for FSU's relationships with the schools in the state of Florida and those throughout the South.

"I am confident that wherever Palmer Williams goes he will prove to be the finest representative of FSU goals and aims and also of the Florida member schools in SUSGA. I can't emphasize too strongly the role each member of our delegation played in our overall successful performance in Gatlinburg, FSU well represented and represented well."

The only casualty of the trip, Attorney General Lief Erickson, somehow managed to find an ice skating rink during a convention. He proceeded to chip off two can teeth and obtain a gas repair. Six stitches to close above his eye when he fell while attempting to explain an intricate machine non-skating southern code.

Loans For Corps Preperation

College juniors who wish to use the summer before their senior year to prepare for post-graduation Peace Corps service now may borrow up to $600 to help pay their senior year school expenses.

Loan repayment may be deferred until after Peace Corps service has been completed.

The loan program, announced today by Peace Corps Director Sargeant Shriver, is the product of an agreement between United Student Aid Fund, Inc. (USA Fund) and the Peace Corps Volunteers Fund, a non-profit foundation established by the Peace Corps National Advisory Council.

Privately funded, the loans are guaranteed by USA Fund, a non-profit corporation providing loan guarantees to students on 700 campuses, with the participation of more than 6,000 banks throughout the United States.

The loans are expected to enable more third-year college students to enroll in the Peace Corps Advanced Training Program, a two-phase plan that provides intensive Peace Corps training during the summer months between the junior and senior year, and just after graduation. Many students who have had to work during summer months now may participate in the Peace Corps Advanced Program.

Trainees in the Advanced Training Program begin their Peace Corps training in June. They receive travel allowances to cover transportation to and from the training center, and a living allowance while training.

Selection for the Advanced Training Program is the same as that used for all Peace Corps applicants, based on an evaluation of the candidate's background as revealed in the Peace Corps Questionnaire, Placement Test results, and character references.

Evaluation continues during the summer training program, and final selection is not made until the end of the second stage, following college graduation.

Following the eight-week summer program, Advanced Training participants return to their regular college, where they may continue language study on an individual basis. No specific course requirements are made.

Florida high school and college students will study in Mexico again this summer under a program sponsored by the Department of Modern Languages.

The participating students will study Spanish and other subjects at Instituto Tecnológico de Monterrey in Monterrey, Mexico from July 10 to Aug. 20.

Undergraduate college students and high school juniors and seniors are eligible to participate in the program, called the Florida State University-Monterrey Tech Program. A knowledge of Spanish is not required, according to Professor Heberto Lacayo, director.

Cost per student is $350 plus transportation and pocket money. Group transportation by bus will be provided for those desiring it.

Further information and applications may be obtained from Lacayo, Department of Modern Languages.

THE NEW SOCIAL SCIENCE BUILDING

... which will be built next to Stroz Library is expected to cost $3,380,000. Bids will be taken in August and construction is expected to take 14 months.

Building Money Appropriated

Florida State University today received a grant of $850,000 from the U.S. Office of Education toward construction of a $3,380,000 Social Sciences Building. A state appropriation of $2,500,000 already is available for the structure.

The building, providing classroom, office and laboratory space for nine social science departments and the School of Social Welfare, will be erected just west of and across Magnolia Way from Stroz Library.

Assistant Business Manager Ray Green Jr. said it is expected bids will be asked in August. It will require 14 months to build.

Chairman Malcolm Parsons of the Department of Government, who heads a building committee which has been planning the structure for five years, said one wing will have a ground floor and six stories. A connected wing will have a ground floor and two stories.

The high level wing, at Magnolia Way and Call Street, will house the Departments of Sociology, Anthropology and Archaeology, Economics, History, Government, Geography and Urban and Regional Planning, along with the Institutes of Governmental Research and Social Research.

The smaller wing will house the School of Social Welfare, with its professional instruction and research in social welfare, social work and criminology and corrections. This wing will be connected with the taller wing and extend almost to Montgomery Gymnasium.

Parsons said the building will have a gross floor space of 151,500 square feet. It will have 23 general purpose classrooms, two lecture halls, 26 seminar and conference rooms, 17 laboratories, one special purpose library, three graduate reading rooms, 166 faculty offices, 32 administrative offices and 82 graduate student offices.

Classroom space will be confined to the ground floor and first two stories above, Parsons said. Kemp, Bunch and Jackson of Jacksonville are architects for the building in association with Forrest Kelley Jr., architect for the Board of Regents.

The federal grant for the building was provided under Title II of the Educational Facilities Act of 1963.

There will be a certificate recital in Opperman Music Hall Thursday at 8:15 p.m.

Mahler's "Des Knaben Wunderhorn" which is in three sections will be part four of the program.

The final part of the program will feature Miss Minihan and will be "Les Illuminations de Rimbaud" by Bittern. The three parts of this number are "Royauté," "Départ," and "Marine."

Four Graduate Students Study Flavor Loss in Stored Foods

Four graduate students are studying the loss of flavor in stored foods under a new grant of $26,158 from the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare to Professor Betty M. Watts of Florida State University's Food and Nutrition Department.

A food researcher for many years, Dr. Watts last year received the Borden Award of the American Home Economics Association for her research contributions in retention of nutritive values and palatability in preserved foods.

Mrs. Ki Soon Choi Rhee, who holds a master's degree in agricultural chemistry from Seoul University, is one of the students. Mrs. Rhee is measuring Lipoxidase, an enzyme which breaks down fats to give decomposition products with off flavors, in blackeyed peas, redeye potato hull, white acre and green crowder peas.

Chung Woon Seo, who holds a bachelor's and a master's degree from Korea University, is working on fat oxidation during freeze-drying and storage.

Mrs. Ruth Carus is attempting to determine whether various amines in food are responsible for off-flavors in dehydrated food.

Barbara Greene is studying the relationship of fat oxidation to the scorched taste in irradiated food, using FSU's three million electron volt electron accelerator.

Students Watch Restaurant Burn

by MARY LEE RADFORD

Flambeau Staff Writer

It was a hot time in the Red Garter eating establishment on W. Jefferson St. across from Gilchrist Hall Saturday night, when an overheated chimney started a fire on the roof of the building.

The fire engines were reported on the scene to fight the blaze, as a crowd gathered in front of the neighboring Sweet Shop.

The reactions of the patrons in the building at the time of the fire were varied. Some casually gathered their food, went outside, and continued eating while watching the fire. One student was seen eating a salad and reading a book.

Many did not even realize the impending disaster until the room was filled with thick smoke. Others cleared out as one young man walked in and said, "You'd better get out, the place is on fire!"

This same man stood outside with an open umbrella while the firemen extinguished the blaze. The owner refunded money to students who had paid but had not yet received their food.

The fire is believed to have spread to the roof of the Seminole Bookstore. The extent of the damage to either building is not known at this time.

Due to an editorial oversight and a mix-up in manuscripts, the "Legend" accidentally printed a poem, "Poetry of Departures," listed as being written by Pat Freeman, announced Editor Carolyn Christensen.

Sluggers Win On Road; Lose Services Of Four

The Seminole Sluggers finished their eight game road trip with a 5-3 record, but unfortunately lost the services of four regular starters, during the 10 day break between trimesters.

The Tribe opened its Northern jaunt with a victory over Duke 11-2, then went down severely in the hands of North Carolina State 7-2 and the University of North Carolina 12-1.

Coach Fred Hatfield's team lost its opener with Clemson in a squeaker, 9-8. The team also lost the services of centerfielder Mike Martin who was hit by a pitched ball which resulted in a broken arm.

Martin finished with a .325 batting average with 17 runs batted in and four homeruns. He will not see action for the remainder of the season.

The Tribe went on to win its double header last Tuesday with Clemson defeating them 13-11 in the first game and in a hitting barrage spearheaded by Randy Brown's grand slam home run, romped to a 16-3 victory in the second game.

The second game was called after five innings, but not before Bob Wilcox and Tom Thomas collided in centerfield attempting to catch a fly ball.

Wilcox suffered a dislocated shoulder and it is not yet known if he will return to the lineup. He was batting .327 at the time.

Thomas and Gerry Chmielewski are doubtful starters in the Seminole's home games this weekend with Loyola of New Orleans due to minor leg ailment.

The Tribe rounded out its away stand with wins over Pensacola Navy. The Seminole record now stands at 19-6-1 with 15 games remaining.

They meet Loyola Friday afternoon at 3 p.m., and Saturday at 2 p.m. at the baseball diamond located behind Tully Gym.

MIKE MARTIN'S

...bat will be silenced for the remainder of the season, Martin suffered a broken arm in the first game against Clemson. He was batting .325 at the time.

Thinclads Compete In Penn.

The FSU thinclads competed in the Pennsylvania Track Relays last weekend against 6,000 other participants from around the nation. Don Casteel scored 47-11 1/2 in the triple jump for a second place slot in the relays.

The Seminole relay teams put on a burst of speed to win the 480 college division relay and mustered up a third place in the 440.

Gerry McDaniel, Al Cato, Ken White and Doug Ferry teamed for the winning slug in the 880. Bob Sable ran in place of Ferry in the 440. Sid Galtney finished fifth in the broad jump with a 22-11 leap. Steve Landis scored another fifth for FSU in the 440 hurdles in a time of 53.6. White finished fourth in the 100-yd. dash.

Coach Mike Long was extremely pleased with the teams' performances. It was their best he exclaimed especially considering the weather, which was cloudy and rainy, and the field of participants, over 6,000. Individual men on the squad are now trying to qualify for the NCAA Championships which are scheduled for June 12-19.

Five men who have qualified are: Cato and White in the 100, McDaniel in the 220, Casteel in the triple jump and Galtney in the broad jump. McDaniel is one tenth of a second away from qualifying for the 440.

flies through the air for 47 ft. 1 1/2 in. for a second place slot in the triple jump at the Pennsylvania Relays last week. Casteel has qualified for the NCAA Championships which are scheduled for next month. Four other teammates have also qualified.

Seminole Shuffle Positions; Martin, Wilcox Out Of Line-Up

Due to the four injured men on the baseball squad Fred Hatfield's team will have a new look when they take to the field this weekend against Loyola.

Centerfielder Mike Martin is definitely out for the season with a broken arm and Bob Wilcox is still suffering with a dislocated shoulder. Tom Thomas, Gerry Chmielewski have minor leg ailments.

If the wounds aren't healed by Friday, it is likely that only second baseman Dick Fernandez and catcher Randy Brown would be in the same positions in which they started the season.

The addition of Wayne Giardino to shortstop sent Maury Hopkins to third, first and occasionally outfield. Hopkins will probably start at first base against Loyola.

With Hopkins on first, Pete Sarron moves to the outfield playing either right or left with Thomas or Money. Cliff Reese is the winning pitcher with 6-2 and Marv Stringer.

Centerfield poses a big question mark. If Wilcox recovers his bat could easily win him the position. However, sophomore Roy Mewbourne is hitting and fielding well, also.

Others batting over the 300 mark are: Thomas .355, Fernandez .308, and Sarron .301.

Cliff Reese is the winning pitcher with 6-2 and Marv Stringer sports a 4-2 record.

Hopkins has closed five home runs batted in (RBI) column with followed by Hopkins and Brown with 17 each.

Sports Wrap-Up

The Seminole tennis team finished out its season with a 11-6 record and placed third in the Florida intercollegiate last weekend at Cape Coral.

The FSU Golf squad went 9-6 for the season defeating Auburn 17 1/2-1/2 at Auburn last week. Don Scartz was low medalist with a 67.

It takes two factories to build one Volkswagen convertible

Life would be much easier if the VW convertible were built in one factory.

But it's not.

Two factories do the job better.

The same plant that builds the VW Sedan also builds the VW convertible chassis.

They put the engine together. They install the torsion bar suspension system. Etc.

The rest of the job is finished in Osnabruck, where the famed Karmann coachmakers live.

The way they build convertible tops is not to be believed.

Everything is hand-sewn. Hand-fitted. Hand-formed.

And the finished top looks it.

You won't find a visible strut or crossbar.

The top is leakproof and airtight. It has a real glass window in back.

It's unparalleled better than almost any sedan you can name.

It's as snug as almost any sedan you can name.

ion Pool Problem News Again

recovery over the use of the University Union pool has reared its ugly head again and over basically the same issue: do outside or on-campus groups get to have use of the Union pool for recreation hours.

The summer Tallahassee Swim Club, composed of children from the Tallahassee community, was forced out of a practice area due to the competition because of the tense situation.

The club applied and received permission to use the Union pool during an emergency situation last summer.

The club then applied to the University Union Board, the policy-making section of the Union hierarchy, for permission to use the pool on a regular basis.

The Board vetoed the proposal saying that this would create a precedent allowing any such organization the right to expect use of the pool at the expense of normal student recreational swimming.

The Tallahassee Swim Club then disbanded and later reformed as the Seminole Swim Club with plans to be sponsored by the University athletic department. In apparent hopes that the move would then listen with a more favorable ear to its request.

Under this new plan the club would have paid $750 to the Union for outright use of the pool during the early morning hours and a more substantial sum to the athletic department to help defray the estimated salaries of additional assistant swimming coaches.

One of these assistants would have acted as the Union pool director (a Union appointed position), assistant to FSU Head Swimming Coach Bill Stults, and assistant coach of the new Seminole Swim Club.

The other coach would also have been an assistant FSU swim coach.

This was the proposal as submitted by the swim club and Coach Stults speaking for the athletic department. Apparently these individuals felt that this proposal was accepted as a final agreement and they were ready to begin using the pool during the next few weeks.

Student personnel and Union officials apparently felt otherwise.

These individuals seemed to feel that, far from adopting proposal, the plan had been dropped for lack of feasibility.

The problems have arisen over whether to let the Seminole Swim Club use the pool even though sponsored by the athletic department, and the proposed use of the Union pool directorship and an assistant swimming coach.

An informal discussion by board members seems to reveal a lack of sympathy over the club's position when the right of FSU students to have free use of the pool is in any way jeopardized.

Union officials have also expressed doubts over the difficulties caused by literally creating a position (pool director and swim coach) that would, in effect, be placing an individual in the position of serving two masters, the Union and the athletic department.

The problem of finding a man who would be competent at both teaching swimming and running an olympic size university pool has also raised a critical question.

The situation is now at a standstill until Union officials, unaware of the swim club's plans, find out if a firm commitment has already been extended to a potential pool director and, should this be the case, whether this individual, if already hired, could be used as an assistant swimming coach.

Gripe Session' Planned Again; Champion Host

Students will be given the opportunity to state their "gripes" directly to the president of the University Monday at 4 p.m. in the lounge of the Union.

The informal panel, Acting President John Champion will be the target of students' questions and challenges.

Students in the panel to ask questions will be Pam Glattrap, representing the student body at large, and Erik Collins, editor of the Flambeau. The panel will be moderated by Joyce Killian, past president of the student body.

The last panel sponsored by the Program Council concerned the Division of Courses. This time the award for best event of the year.

Following Monday's session, students' gripes will be presented every Friday afternoon during trimester refreshments will be served before the fun begins.

Students interested in the facilities, program, or future of FSU may attend.

THE LIBRARY COMMITTEE

... listens as Orwin Rush, Director of Libraries, comments on the need for the restoration of the proposed $3 million cut in the FSU library funds.

SG Said Opposed

The State Budget Commission's recommendation that the request for funds to the FSU library be cut by $3 million was the main subject of the Library Committee meeting last month.

The Board of Regents had requested that the library be given three and a half million dollars to be used for buying new books.

Student Body President Jim Groot showed the committee members reproductions of a Student Government letter supporting restoration of the cut. The letter was sent to over 75 legislators, said Groot.

formulating operating rules of the Legislative Council began this morning and will end at 5 p.m. Tuesday.

The legislative body will function as the Senate for the third trimester, enacting statutes to apply to the third trimester only.

It shall consist of nine council members elected at large for the summer, any precinct senators who are enrolled, and the class senators who were installed in the latter part of trimester II and who are enrolled.

Students interested in filing candidacy for one of the nine seats may do so in Room 337 Union. They must have at least a 2.0 average and be enrolled for the entire trimester III.

Budget Cut Library Committee Topic

The Library Committee, the Library staff said that several thousand dollars are spent annually to replace mutilated and stolen books.

They felt the problem might be reduced if the students realized the seriousness of the situation and availability of inexpensive xeroxing facilities in the library microfilm room.

The library staff also said interim measures will be needed to reduce the overcrowding until the new addition to the library is completed two years from now.

The committee suggested that a survey be conducted to determine how many non-university people are using the library.

Also it was suggested that provisions be made for students who use the library solely as a quiet place to study.

Groot asked the committee for comments and advice on a Student Government memorandum which outlined six specific student library projects.

The projects were concerned with a two-way exchange of information between the library and students, public relations for the library and voluntary student-faculty work on special library projects.

Max Lerner Talk Coming Monday

Max Lerner, author, teacher and columnist, will be the University Lecture Series speaker Monday night.

His topic is "Morals and the College Campus." The lecture, at 8:30 p.m. in Moore Auditorium, is free and open to the public.

Lerner has taught at Sarah Lawrence College, Harvard University and Williams College. At present he is professor of American Civilization at Brandeis University and a regular columnist for the New York Times.

Lerner received his B.A. at Yale in 1923 and his Ph.D. at the Robert Brookings Graduate School of Economics and Government in 1927. He has frequently appeared on television and radio and has written numerous books on politics, law, education, and social theory.

He spent the academic year 1959-60 in India, teaching in the Graduate School of International Studies at the University of Delhi, and in Europe in 1963-64 under a Ford grant for research and study.

Lerner's "The Age of Overkill" is his first full-scale book since his best known work, "America as a Civilization."

HELP!

If you are interested in sex, intrigue, excitement, meeting important people, pretty girls or handsome men, flunking out of school, acquiring the hard core of your friends or just plain hard work, then Room 326 in the Union is the place for you.

It's 5:30 today.

This is the golden opportunity for those adventure seeking souls who have always wanted to do something worthwhile (?) on campus but haven't gotten around to it.

The "Flambeau" needs people for news writing, interviewing, typing, picture taking, floor sweeping, errand running and some good old morale raising.

Experience is not necessary, but a speaking knowledge of the English language is very helpful.

We need you. If you can't come, send your roommate.

Your Chance

Students are constantly griping.

They complain about registration, the food services, mud due to construction, the lack of parking places, women's rules, the administration, the Board of Regents, the action taken on the "Smoke Signals," and any number of other topics which come up in the students' daily conversation.

Possibly some of the students' complaints are legitimate. It is also quite probable, however, that there are no grounds for some of the criticisms. And why might the students not have a good basis for their gripes? Simply because they are uninformed.

This summer the administration, in cooperation with the University Union Board, is providing an opportunity for the students and the administration to come together in informal discussions to air their common complaints and seek the answers to questions frequently asked from both camps. It is an excellent opportunity for both students and University officials to become informed.

Monday afternoon at 4 p.m., Dr. John Champion, acting president of the university, will meet with students in a public forum. Dr. Champion is anxious to come together with all students who have questions which they wish answered. He wants to get to know the students and what they are thinking.

Students found griping on campus Tuesday about administrative policies or student problems will be demonstrating their absence from Monday's session with Dr. Champion.

JK

Post-Mortem

Registrar Murray Kenna and his staff should be commended for their immediate actions taken concerning difficulties encountered in last Friday's registration.

Instead of rationalizing and covering up their mistakes, they admitted that they were at fault and did a "thorough post-mortem" on Friday's fiasco. The lessons they learned should benefit the students as they go through registration in the future.

Distinguished Professor

Betty Watts Lauded By Colleagues

Betty Monaghan Watts, professor of food and nutrition, was named FSU's Distinguished Professor for 1980-81 at spring graduation ceremonies. Dr. Watts is internationally known among food scientists for her studies in the causes of food deterioration, Although interested in all phases of food spoilage she has concentrated on changes resulting from exposure to light and oxygen, enzyme activity, various reactions of natural constituents, materials added to the foods, and processing methods, including irradiation.

Last year she received the Borden Award for outstanding research in food science. She currently is a member of the Advisory Committee on Human Nutrition and Consumer Use Research by appointment of the secretary of agriculture.

Her colleagues honor her for this distinguished research, said Academic Vice-President Karl Dätmer. They also honor her as a teacher of both undergraduate and graduate students who "has always regarded teaching as an integral part of an active research program," he continued.

In addition, "with almost inexhaustible energy and enthusiasm, Dr. Watts has given distinctive service and leadership to innumerable committees, inter-institutional, university-wide, and in Home Economics," he said.

The award carries with it a check for $500.

Her published journal articles number nearly 100 and she is the holder of several patents.

But all through the years, her colleagues say, teaching, both of graduates and graduate students, has been important to her.

"Her classroom lectures are examples of meticulously prepared discussions presented with calm and enthusiasm," said one. "She has the ability to make complex material crystal clear. Her students have often meant a 'breathing' of understanding basic science, those students fortunate enough attend them. Laboratory experiments designed to illustrate scientific facts are carefully developed and presented to the students."

"Her office door is always open to her own students and others who eagerly seek her assistance and guidance. Her relations with students do not terminate, as they when they leave the campus. Rather, they are devoted to her, adding both her energy and research ability."

Teaching, Graduate Study Top Plans Of FSU Spring Graduates

Graduate or advanced professional study runs second to teaching in the plans of the 1973 seniors who received a bachelor's degree last month.

The School of Education estimates that 49 of the graduates have taken teacher training and, based on past experience, 98 per cent will do at least some teaching.

Based also on past experience, it can be expected that 86 per cent of the teacher trainees will remain in Florida, eight per cent will stay nearby in the Southeast, and three or four per cent will locate along the eastern seaboard.

Two per cent will go to the Far West and less than one per cent will go to the Midwest or Southwest.

Nearly 300 of the teacher trainees are getting degrees in the School of Education. Others are getting degrees in the College of Arts and Sciences, School of Music and other divisions. Of the total, 150 are trained in elementary teaching and 293 in secondary and junior high school teaching.

A survey of 100 seniors who could easily be reached by telephone showed 25 plan to enter graduate school or a professional school for further study, either immediately or within a year.

Six of the interviewed plan to go to law school, and these represent only a small proportion of the number of pre-law students at FSU.

Robert W. Morris, in a criminology-criminology major, and Roger J. McDonald, a finance major in the Center for College of Law.

Plans of other students for advanced study vary widely. Clifton Terry, a history major, plans to enter Yale Divinity School in the fall and D. Clark Thompson, a psychology major, plans to enter Duke School of Theology.

Others among a probable 200 to 300 graduates who will go on shortly for postgraduate study include Diane L. Alexander, a social science major, who plans to enter FSU Graduate School in September to study higher education, with a minor in history; Myra Hancock, who is continuing her study of home economics education; and David P. Dill, in a criminology-corrections major plan to begin working toward a master of social work degree here.

Raymond R. Schroeder, a psychology-social welfare major, is going to work for a year as a public welfare caseworker in the Broward County area, then return for graduate studies, possibly at FSU. Karen L. Glendinning, who is working in the same double major, plans a year of work as a psychiatric social worker in a hospital, then hopes to take graduate work in psychiatric social work at LSU or University of Tennessee.

Many graduates are going immediately into various jobs in the financial and business world. Some others with business training are going into governmental service.

Says Ray Green

Rooftop Playgrounds May Be Next

A shortage of space on college campuses may move some intramural athletics to the rooftops, according to a speaker at a national meeting at FSU recently.

Ray E. Green Jr., assistant business manager at FSU, which is host for a meeting of 100 persons attending the 16th annual meeting of the National Intramural Association said:

"With 12,000 students, more than half of them men, we need more recreational facilities. More construction is not the only problem. Space is now at a premium and the campus building and development committee is casting long eyes at the spacious athletic facilities at the west end of the campus."

"One suggestion has been presented that some type of athletic facilities be placed on top of future men's dormitories. I personally believe that tennis or volleyball courts could be located on the top of one of our present dormitories and should be provided on any dormitory which has a large flat roof."

Another speaker, Vaughn Corley of New Mexico State University, reported on a questionnaire which was answered by 71 universities and colleges indicating an increase in intramural activities.

Participation by the students has increased in all but six schools and activities offered have increased about 40 per cent. However, Corley said, "Most of the intramural directors felt that their facilities were more adequate to take care of the needs and demands of the student body in 1955 than they are today."

"In the highly competitive sports and those which help with physical fitness such as touch football, basketball, tennis and softball the facilities have improved more than those sports.

"This is as it should be. It was we should never lose track of the fact that in later life we cannot play football, softball and basketball that we can swim, run, play tennis, golf, rifle, a rifle, play tennis, and do a number of other things until late in life."

From a query of the 20 fast growing universities in the country, Jay Naylor of Brigham Young University, Provo, Utah, reported 98 per cent of the schools had major facilities that have been constructed on their campuses since 1960.

Naylor stated that of the new activities added to the program was listed as the most popular in popularity.

By solving problems in astronautics, Air Force scientists expand man's knowledge of the universe. Lt. Howard McKinley, M.A., tells about research careers on the Aerospace Team.

(Lt. McKinley holds degrees in electronics and electrical engineering from the Georgia Institute of Technology and the Armed Forces Institute of Technology. He received the 1963 Air Force Research & Development Award for his work with internal guidance components. Here he answers some frequently-asked questions about the place of college-trained men and women in the U.S. Air Force.)

Is Air Force research really advanced, compared to what others are doing? It certainly is. As a matter of fact, much of the work being done right now in universities and industry had its beginnings in Air Force research and development programs. When you're involved in the development of guidance systems for space vehicles—a current Air Force project in America's space program—you're working on the frontiers of knowledge.

What areas do Air Force scientists get involved in? Practically any you can name. Of course the principal aim of Air Force research is to expand our aerospace capability. But in carrying out this general purpose, individual projects explore an extremely wide range of topics. "Side effects" of Air Force research are often as important, scientifically, as the main thrust.

How important is the work a recent graduate can expect to do? It's just as important as exciting as his own knowledge and skill can make it. From my own experience, I can say that right from the start I was finding vital, absorbing work. One of the things that's so good about an Air Force career—it gives young people the chance to do meaningful work in the areas that really interest them.

What non-scientific jobs does the Air Force offer? Of course the Air Force has a continuing need for rated officers—pilots and navigators. There are also many varied and challenging administrative-management positions. Remember, the Air Force is a vast and complex organization. It takes a great many different kinds of people to keep it running. But there are two uniform criteria: you've got to be intelligent, and you've got to be willing to work hard.

What sort of future do I have in the Air Force? Just as big as you want to make it. The Air Force talent has a way of coming to the top. It has to be that way, if we're going to have the best people in the right places, keeping America strong and free.

What's the best way to start an Air Force career? An excellent way—the way I started—is through Air Force Officer Training School. OTS is a three-month course, given at Lackland Air Force Base, near San Antonio, Texas, that's open to both men and women. You can apply when you're within 210 days of graduation, or after you've received your degree.

How long will I be committed to serve? Four years from the time you graduate from OTS and receive your commission. If you go on to pilot or navigator training, the four years starts when you're awarded your wings.

Are there other ways to become an Air Force officer? There's the Air Force ROTC, active at many colleges and universities, and the Air Force Academy, where admission is by examination and by congressional appointment. If you'd like more information on any Air Force program, you can get it from the Professor of Aerospace Studies (If there's one on your campus) or from an Air Force recruiter.

Seminoles Meet Loyola Today

Today's game

The Seminole baseball team takes to the field today at 3 p.m. against Loyola of New Orleans at the FSU diamond.

It will be anyone's guess as to the starting lineup. The only sure choices are Randy Brown at catcher and Dick Fernandez at second baseman.

Fred Hatfield's squad is plagued with injuries and the big question mark still remains, "who will play in centerfield?" Roy Mewbourne is a possible choice along with Maury Hopkins, Tom Thomas, or Monty McBryde.

However, Hopkins may start at first or third base sending Pete Sarron to the outfield. McBryde may begin at third base or Gary Lawrence could take over third or shortstop depending on the position of Wayne Giardino.

Either Marv Stringfellow or Cliff Ranew will start on the mound for the Seminoles.

With Hatfield's system of platooning, it is quite likely that everyone will participate in the game at one position or another.

Kehoe Finishes In National ACU

Bob Kehoe finished 71 out of a field of 13,847 college bowlers competing in the 1982 American College Unions Championships in St. Paul, Minnesota last weekend.

Kehoe won the berth in the finals, finishing second with a 195 average in the ACU regional roll-offs held at FSU in March. Bowling in the Thursday mixers at FSU, Kehoe sported over a 180 average and was anchor man on the first place team.

His finish was based on his overall performance in the single, double and team events. Nationally, Kehoe was ranked 75 in singles, 30 in doubles competition and was a member of the 15th placed team.

Kehoe's high scores in the finals were 206 and 326. He overcame odds of 194-1 to capture a spot in the national championships. Over 13,000 students competed for three months in 188 campus and 15 regional tournaments to determine the 75 finalist berths at St. Paul.

Union Pool Controversy Awaiting Some Action

The controversy over the use of the University Union pool by non-University individuals or organizations is still up in the air.

The issues seem to revolve around the hiring of a combination pool director-assistant swim coach and a lack of communication between the Seminole Swim Club, the FSU athletic dept., and student personnel officials.

The "Flambeau" could find no definite answers last night to the directorship-coach problem either from the deans' offices or Seminole Swim Club officials.

Each side is apparently waiting for the other to make the first move. It appears that the Seminole Swim

Club believes that its earlier proposals have been accepted. This apparently does not jive with the deans' offices who reportedly are waiting for some kind of definite course of action to be given to their offices for consideration.

Previously the Union Board had denied use of the pool to the Tallahassee Swim Club on the basis that approval might open the door for other outside groups in the future.

The board reportedly felt that with approval the situation might develop into a practice of outside groups using the pool at the expense of student recreation.

When faced with the possibility of many promising high school swimmers in the area not having the opportunity to practice, the Tallahassee Club, with the encouragement of the FSU athletic dept., reformed as the Seminole Swim Club.

This organization would have allowed the use of the pool by local children due to an affiliation with the University.

This is the move that has been stopped by student personnel and Union officials until the ramifications of the proposal are clearly understood.

According to Associate Dean of Students Jack Arnold, the holdup due to the lack of a concrete proposal to the administration from the Seminole Swim Club.

When contacted for comment, FSU Swim Coach Bill Suits said he knew of no problem and would reserve reply.

However, he did say that a proposal from the athletic dept. has been sent to the dean of students office. This proposal is reportedly request permission to form the Seminole Swim Club which will include the members of the disbanded Tallahassee Swim Club and University personnel.

According to reliable sources, the Seminole Swim Club would be on the order of similar organizations in other universities.

The club, while free to FSU faculty, staff, and students, would be supported by the University.

Election Filing Deadline Today

The deadline for filing declarations of candidacy for next Tuesday's election for the nine seats on the Summer Legislative Council has been extended to 5 p.m. today announced Commissioner of Elections
Tom Farrar.

"Because of the twice-weekly publication of the 'Flambeau,' the hurriedness of the first week of classes, and the lack of declarations thus far filed, the extension seemed imperative," said Farrar.

"I don't feel the students are aware of the importance of this council to the effective functioning of Student Government during the summer tri-

"This legislative body acts as a summer Senate. It is to be noted that the task of adequate statutory supervision falls," stated Farrar.
Students wishing to file for election may do so in room 337 Union.

will be the subject tomorrow at 4 p.m. in the Browning Lounge of the Union when Chaplain Robert Spivey reviews "The Gospel According to Peanuts."

Chaplain R. Spivey To Review Religious Ideas In Comic Strips

Religion in the comic strips will be the topic of a book review by Dr.
Spivey tomorrow at 4 p.m.
in the Browning Lounge of the Union.
He will discuss, "The Gospel According to Peanuts," by Robert Short, and, based on the comic strip
Peanuts.

In relation to the ideas he thinks are presented in Peanuts.
Spivey said that the author makes his point explicit and presents an excellent "look at life." In his review, Spivey will discuss the way the author probes human behavior.

"The Gospel According to Peanuts" was given an excellent review by "Time" magazine in a cover story recently.

This book review is the second in a series of eleven sponsored by the Union Program Council. The first review was given by Dr. Griffith
Pugh on "Poems From Ogden Nash."

The author feels that Charles Schulz, the creator of Peanuts, is satirizing various Christian ideas such as original sin by under the characters of the comic strip
Peanuts.

Ethical, Religious Issues Topic Of New Weekly Series Of Films

A weekly series of films and drama dealing with current ethical and religious issues of our society will be presented each Thursday evening at 7:30 p.m.

The series, entitled "Challenge of Faith," is sponsored by the campus religious houses and the Chaplain's offices at FAMU and FSU.

According to the FSU Chaplain, Dr.
Robert Spivey, the purpose of the film series is to show that "religion does deal with life. The questions presented in the films are of value to both the FSU and the FAMU student bodies and involve both campuses."

A panel consisting of professors from both schools will discuss each of the presentations and will "afford us with an opportunity to discuss together possible solutions to the problems which are presented in these films."

"The Quiet One" will be shown this Thursday under the heading of "The Unwanted and Delinquency."
This program deals with the problem of children growing up without being loved, appreciated or wanted.

On the panel to discuss the program will be Prof. Vernon Fox and Prof.
Lewis Killian of FSU and Prof. C. L.
Smith of FAMU.

On May 20 "A Time Out of War" and "Language of Faces" will be shown in Moore Auditorium under the heading of "The Language of War."

"A Time Out of War" is a Civil War film in which two soldiers from each side are taken time out from battle to go fishing together.

The May 27 program will feature the comedy "Eye" which deals with "The Sick Society." The film is about a divorce and her life in Southern California and concerns the modern "depressing aspects of society."

"Night and Fog" will be presented in Moore Auditorium on June 3. The discussion topic for that week will be "Anti-Semitism" and the movie will be concerned with concentration camps.

Prize Winner To Study In France

FSU student Kenneth Strickler has won the 1965 National Scholarship Award of Pi Delta Phi, the French honor society.

The $500 check presented him recently will help support a summer of study at the University of Paris.
Strickler, who has studied at FSU for the past two years, is president of the local chapter of Pi Delta Phi.

He received the award from Mrs.
Azzura Givens, faculty adviser for the honorary and his first French teacher at FSU, and Professor Victor R. B. Oelschlaeger, head of the Modern Language Dept.

The national organization reported Strickler was in competition "with an outstanding group of candidates" and was selected for "the excellent work which he has done at the undergraduate level." He will receive his bachelor's degree in June and leave immediately for Paris.

Strickler said he may remain at the Sorbonne as long as a year. After his Paris studies he has a teaching assistantship waiting him at the University of Illinois, where he will do graduate work.

Strickler attended Rollins College during his freshman and sophomore years.

SCHOLARSHIP AWARD WINNER

Kenneth Strickler receives $500 scholarship check from Dr. Azzura Givens while Dr. Victor Oel-schlaeger looks on.

Act Now

Sen. Pete Gibson's bill which would enable FSU to create a law school deserves the attention and support of every citizen of the State of Florida, both those who are members of the State Legislature and those who are not.

A great many senators sponsored the bill which passed the Senate with an overwhelming majority. The bill is currently before a committee of the House of Representatives.

A few facts should be pointed out in regard to the proposed legislation. These facts should clear up any possible misconceptions allegedly held by several House members.

First, the law school to be created in Tallahassee is not designed to compete with the law center at Gainesville.

Second, the law school is not a political football or political favor; it is an educational need that is recognized statewide. The State of Florida is either going to have to extend the ceiling (now set at 1200), put on the enrollment of the University of Florida's already overburdened law school or send the hopeful law students out of the state.

There is no question that it is unwise for the state to turn prospective attorneys away when Florida is presently below the national norm of the number of lawyers per 100,000 people.

Why have the law school here?

As Florida Supreme Court Justice B.K. Roberts has ably pointed out: 1) All educators agree a law school should be created where there already exists a good foundation in the arts and sciences;

2) The "laboratory" aspects of Tallahassee cannot be denied—the State Supreme Court, Circuit Court, State Law Library and the administrative organs of the State itself are among the many facilities available for the use of law students;

3) In Tallahassee, there would be available as guest lecturers many of the leading state governmental figures and justices.

4) If the FAMU law school is going to be phased out as planned, the FSU law school could inherit the FAMU law library.

It should be remembered, too, that the bill is not asking that an appropriation be made—it is just recognizing the educational needs for an additional law school.

We cannot wait any longer to have this need satisfied. Sen. Gibson, an FSU alum now representing the 10th District (Madison and Taylor counties) deserves the Mathematics, nursing and business education are some of the many programs planned by the FSU broadcast services division. The programs will be television presentations to regular courses. FSU-TV now produces 30 television lessons geared to present the principles of the new mathematics to Florida's elementary school teachers. Pending approval by the 1965 legislature, production of these lessons is expected to continue during this summer and fall. Dr. Robert Kain of the math dept. will conduct a pilot test class with the series this fall to determine if revisions are needed.

Produced with the cooperation of FSU's math department and FIGUS, the lesson will be telecast throughout Florida beginning Jan., 1966.

A soprano, Miss Minihan, had the role of Eliza Doolittle in the FSU production of "My Fair Lady." Miss Minihan, who is completing her work toward a master of music degree in opera production during Trimester III-A, sang five principal operatic parts as an undergraduate at University of Southwestern Louisiana.

As graduate assistant (costumer) for the FSU Opera Guild she has costumed for "Susannah," "Carmen," "Pagliacci" and "Tales of Hoffman."

Captain von Trapp will be sung by Fred Vorce of the School of Music faculty. Active in Opera Guild work, Vorce directed the production of "My Fair Lady" and "Pagliacci" last fall. He was chorus master for "Carmen" and "Susannah."

Interests Of College Students To Be Featured By Magazine

Sex, sports, careers, religion, fine arts, travel, fashions, poetry, humor and fiction will make its first appearance this spring in a national intercollegiate magazine devoted to the general interests of college students.

It will be published by the RDL Publishing Company. The name will not be released until the first issue goes on sale. The uniqueness of the publication will be its national character, being written for, by, and about college students throughout the United States.

According to the publisher, "there is great diversity on the campuses throughout the country, but the individual student wants to be informed about the thought, the spirit, the news of other students in other parts of the country."

"Students are aware that 'college' is more than the familiar things at their own school, but a lack of coverage of collegiate affairs stifles their curiosity. It has created a need for a communications medium that is aimed at this desire to be informed about other colleges."

The magazine will be issued ten months a year, Sept. through June, with the first issue being published this spring.

The publishers are currently buying cartoons, photos and short articles. The usual requirements for materials submitted to magazines, such as double spacing, etc. should be observed.

Circulation representatives for the FSU campus are being sought. They will be paid on a commission basis. A minimum of two hours per week will be required, and as many additional hours can be worked as desired.

McMurray To Serve GOP Staff

Carl D. McMurray, associate professor of government and research associate in the Institute of Governmental Research, will take leave in June to serve for a year on the staff of the Republican Governors Association.

McMurray will work in the office of the chairman of the association, Idaho Gov. Robert E. Smylie, at Boise. He will be on a faculty fellowship of the National Center for Education in Politics as one of 10 fellows chosen during 1964-65 to serve in the offices of state or local political leaders.

Last summer, under a similar fellowship, McMurray made a study of the Florida delegation to the Republican National Convention in relation to party organization in Florida.

In announcing the appointment of McMurray, Governor Smylie said: "The members of the Republican Governors Association are delighted to have Dr. McMurray serve his KCEP Fellowship with us."

"With our new national headquarters opening in Washington it is imperative that we have a liaison man to help me in my Boise office."

DR. WERNER HERZ

... will be presented the annual Florida Award of the American Chemical Society for "demonstrating outstanding ability in research."

Florida ACS Branch Award Goes To FSU Professor Werner Herz

The 14th annual Florida Award of the American Chemical Society's Florida Section will go to FSU professor Werner Herz, Friday.

The Florida Section announced that the award will be presented during the annual meeting-in-miniature of the Florida Section in Gainesville. It will be presented by the president of the section, Ray V. Lawrence.

After receiving the award, given since 1952 to a chemist "demonstrating outstanding ability and contributions in research, teaching and administration," Herz will address the banquet on the subject, "Chemistry in Florida."

A member of Florida State's faculty since 1949, Dr. Herz is widely known for research on the bitterweed and other members of the Composite plant family.

He also has been active in chemical research and is the author of about 100 scientific papers and books, "The Shape of Carbon Molecules," published in 1963.

He currently has research grants from U.S. Public Health Service (plant chemistry), National Science Foundation (terpene chemistry), Petroleum Research Fund (molecular rearrangements). He participated in international symposia on natural products at Prague and in 1962 and 1964.

Dr. Herz presently is senior editor of the Journal of Organic Chemistry. He was a member of the advisory panel on Chemistry for the National Science Foundation from 1961 to 1964 and during the same period was a member of the Council of the American Chemical Education on Chemical Education.

Air Force ROTC has now been updated to fit into today's busy undergraduate schedule.

Here are the facts about the new two-year AFROTC Program.

Your first decision of the day... which deodorant?

As your day begins, you may choose between two equally effective deodorants:

APD Ritz keeps you sweetly nice to be near right round the clock. It's a clear gel in a tube... easy to apply, quick-drying. $1.50.*

Anti Perspirant gives you the same social security in creamy, liquid form. Comes in an unbreakable bottle. $2.*

Charles of the Ritz

Linden's

TALLAHASSEE'S LEADING APPAREL SHOP

Who is eligible for two-year AFROTC? Any male undergraduate who still has two years remaining in college. It's an especially good break for junior college students who plan to complete their baccalaureate requirements at a four-year institution.

What's the curriculum like? It's been thoroughly revamped. You won't find pad answers and traditional ritualized solutions to problems. New instructional methods teach the student to arrive at his own conclusions, and to test them against those of his classmates and instructors. Symbolic of the change is the new title—Department of Aerospace Studies.

How will students for the new program be chosen? First, you must pass the Air Force Officer Qualifying Test and have a medical examination. Then you meet with the interview board of senior Air Force officers, who will decide whether you are to be selected to attend the Field Training Course. This will be held during the summer before your junior year. Its purpose is two-fold, to let the Air Force judge you and to let you judge the Air Force. Only after you are both satisfied will you be enrolled in the program. So you see, you have everything to gain and nothing to lose by applying now. But you must act fast—applications will be closing for next year's juniors. Forms are available from the Professor of Aerospace Studies, or from Headquarters Air Force ROTC, Maxwell AFB, Alabama.

As an AFROTC cadet, will I receive pay? Yes, you will be paid for the Field Training Course, which will amount to approximately $120. During the school year, you will be paid $40 a month, and you will also get free uniforms.

Will I have a chance to fly while I am in AFROTC? Senior graduates are eligible for the Flying Instruction Program. This involves 300 hours of flight training and 35 hours of ground school. Successful completion earns you a civilian private pilot's license.

In a close call at second base, Roy's Tony Blance was ruled safe as the bases and groans of the fans. Hearing the many spectators run out, one observant fan said, "He's out! Impresario says he's out, but majority rule? It's 500-1 for the runner!"

baseball was the brunt of much criticism during the weekend. Going hitless for six times at bat in the two games, one oldtimer in the crowd shouted, "Come on kid, you'd be for something... chin up!" Gardino sent the next pitch over the left field fence for a three run homer.

Earlier in the game, Gardino made an outstanding play at third base. A fan told Gerry Chmielewski, the Tribe's regular third base starter who is out of the lineup with a broken leg, he would have a hard time getting back.

Chmielewski, who was announcing the game jokingly said, "That's OK, it's better to go out for announcing, more money in it, easier life... you can't any broken bones sitting here."

During a Loyola pitching change, the three outfielders gathered in short center field for presumably a short chat. Questioned one fan, "What's going on in center field, a bridge game? Three no trump for Loyola in the outfield."

Loyola catcher Tom Schabel was coaching at first base when teammate Don Genusa sent a baseball screaming past his head. Schabel pointed a shaking finger to the infield and said, "Out there Don, out there."

Pool Controversy

ported by membership dues and contributions from local "boosters" not unlike the football "Seminole Boosters."

As proposed by the club, the pool would be used in the morning for practice between 6:30 and 8 a.m. this month. Starting in June with high school summer vacation the club would use the pool between 7 and 10 a.m.

These hours do not interfere with normal student recreational swimming say club officials.

The cost of operation for the added time would not be significant in the summer because there are no utility bills but there are other maintenance problems to be considered said Dr. Reid Montgomery, director of the Union.

According to a source in the Seminole Swim Club, the extra maintenance cost would be paid by the club.

In an extra inning game Friday, the Tribe edged Loyola 7-6 on an 11th inning pinch-hit single by FSU's Rick Hutchinson.

Saturday's match had fans wondering if they were watching the "Magnificent Seven" or the Seminole "Nine" when the Tribe racked up 18 runs to Loyola's 14, including a three run homer by Wayne Giardino, FSU third baseman, alias Tribe full-back.

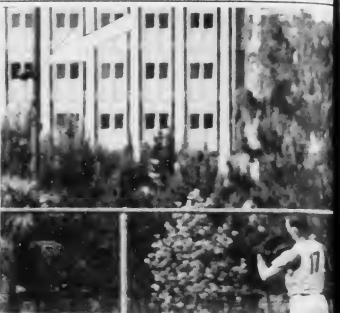

Giardino, who had trouble with his glove in the fielding department, clouted the baseball over the left field fence driving in Roy Mewbourne and Gary Nichols in the Seminole's big sixth inning when they scored eight runs.

The Tribe led 18-2 going into the eighth inning. The Loyola bats connected for five runs in the top of the eighth and added seven more scores in the ninth inning.

Until Saturday's game, Loyola had a total of nine team errors for 18 games. They doubled that total with 10 errors Saturday afternoon. Only six of the Seminole runs were earned.

Every Seminole starter crossed home plate at least once except for pitcher Marv Stringfellow. Randy Brown and Maury Hopkins scored three runs apiece.

Stringfellow was the winning pitcher Saturday going seven innings with Bob Kull and Jim Ward acting the relief role.

Lopez Dropped By SAS Committee

Harry Lopez with the Ford Caravan Music has been dropped from the list of agents of full entertainment by the Interim Student Artist Series Committee. It was announced today.

The Lopez show was tentatively set for Friday, Oct. 30 in Tully Gym. The committee felt that Lopez is the type of attraction necessary for a successful series.

The Interim Committee, composed of Student Body President Jim Groot, acting as Chairman, and members Mike Collins, Chairman of the Union Board, "Flambeau" News Editor Dave Nelson, Vice President Larry Gonzalez, Men's Vice President Bill Wood, and two members of Groot's staff, Joe Telone and Tom Farrar, met Tuesday to establish policy and review coming entertainment. The Interim Committee was established lished by Groot because the previous administration had not made any provision for a regular committee to act during trimester III.

"Because of the fact that booking arrangements for the entertainment programs must be made at such an early date it is necessary for the Student Artist Series Committee to operate on a year-around basis," said Groot.

The main order of business for the evening was the adoption of statutory revisions to be presented to the regular Senate when it convenes in the fall.

The revisions are primarily to strengthen the position of the student on the committee. One such proposal is to make it mandatory that the student chairman of the committee sign all contracts before they are sent to the agents.

This will prevent the possibility of times, dates and admission prices being set without the knowledge of the committee.

Also included in the proposed revisions will be the requirement that the chairman have at least two trimesters experience on the committee and be selected by the Student Body President.

If the proposals are adopted there will be 11 voting members appointed by class on the committee. There will be three freshmen, three sophomores, three juniors and two seniors appointed by the president of the student body in conjunction with the Chairman of the Union Board.

It was also decided at the meeting to change the name of the committee if a suitable substitute is suggested.

This is primarily to prevent any more confusion with the University Artist Series which operates on a separate budget under a different committee.

Student suggestions on possible names are welcome and may be submitted to the Student Government or "Flambeau" offices.

A second meeting of the Interim committee has been set for May 25.

Sex, Morality Learner Subjects

"There can be sex without love and a bed without affection," said Dr. Max Lerner Monday night to an attentive audience in Moore Auditorium.

Lerner delivered his lecture in "direct, unvarnished terms" as a lecturer in the University Lecturer Series.

In covering the topic of morality and the college campus, Lerner mentioned a variety of topics including sexual intercourse before marriage and the current best-seller "Candy," which he read, with his teeth gritting, at the suggestion of one of his sons.

Lerner's major points were that

The latest attempt by an outside group to gain use of the Union Pool has failed.

Dean of Students Harry P. Day has vetoed the attempt saying that he will stand by a previous decision of the Union Board not to allow outside groups use of the pool.

A memorandum sent by the FSU on the same order as the football athletic dept. to Day earlier this week was reported to request administrative permission to form the Seminole Swim Club.

The proposed club would have been under the auspices of the athletic dept. and supervised by an additional swimming coach to be an assistant to Head Swimming Coach Blim Stiles. Membership in the club would be free to students, faculty and staff. There was to be a substantial charge to non-University members, most of whom were in the Tallahassee Swim Club which was disbanded to form the Seminole Swim Club.

An argument in favor of the Seminole club was that the additional coach would not cost the University. The money would primarily have been provided by a "booster" club.

Spratt To Speak As Series Guest

Dr. John F. Spratt, associate professor of the School of Music, will speak on "Music Regarded as an Index of Civilization" Monday at 8 p.m. in Moore Auditorium.

Spratt, speaking for the University Lecture Series, will "attempt to show that music activity manifests the ideals of any civilization at any given time."

"Where such ideals are relatively dormant... there is a conspicuous absence, not of music, but of music worthy of preservation and study," states Spratt.

Open Tallahassee Pools

To the Editor:

The city of Tallahassee owns, but does not presently operate, three swimming pools. They claim they cannot "afford" to do so. We all know why there is a sudden dearth of recreation money in the capital of Florida. Don't ask the city in this dilemma. If the "Seminoles Swim Club" has so much money, let them defray some of the city expenses.

Perhaps in return, they would be allowed reserved time. The population of FSU is more than sufficient to fully utilize the present facilities and should not be deprived to support a city group that should have enough influence to persuade the city commission to reopen the city-owned pools.

Yours truly,
Jeanne E. Fakes

Acceptance Of Women Students Stopped In Mid-March: Registrar

by FAITH VAN ETTEN

FSU stopped accepting women's applications for next fall before Smith, or Vassar, said Associate Registrar Willis Caldwell today.

The quota for women students was filled by mid-March, long before the registrar's office expected. This date was only one month later than last year, despite a rise from 300 to 350 in the required score on Florida Senior Placement Exams.

These facts may sound discouraging to borderline prospective students, but Caldwell explained two alternatives for these students to continue their education.

Most of these applicants are given the opportunity to enter in January. Very few accept this plan according to Caldwell, but he said his chief selling point is the trimester system. It allows them to finish their first year before the next school year starts.

A second alternative for applicants not admitted is to further their education through junior colleges near their homes. Junior colleges have become accessible to 80 per cent of the students of Florida compared to only 20 per cent in 1955.

Students that transfer from junior colleges have the same grade requirements as students who have completed their first two years at FSU. Nearly five thousand people have applied for next fall's freshman class and three thousand requests for applications have been refused. Of those applying only 2800 have been accepted.

Freshmen men's applications are still being accepted, but few openings remain. Of the 2800 new students, approximately 15 per cent are from out of state. No out of state applications have been accepted since February.

FSU Again Hosts French Meet

France will begin the FSU campus again this summer.

For the third year FSU will host a Summer Institute in French from June 21-Aug. 14 in cooperation with the U.S. Office of Education. A contract of approximately $82 thousand has been provided under the National Defense Education Act.

Dr. Victor Oelschlagel, head of the modern languages dept., said 45 high school teachers of French from over the entire country will be invited to attend.

Participants will receive a weekly stipend plus dependency allowances.

While here they will increase their competency in the French language, their knowledge of French history and culture, and become familiar with new teaching techniques.

Herman James of the department will be the director with a staff of six resident and visiting faculty members. Among visiting faculty members will be Dr. Simon Belasco, professor of romance linguistics at Pennsylvania State University, and Prof. Georges-Paul Collet of McGill University.

Students will spend 40 hours a week in the classroom and language laboratory.

Tellone Has Jobs

A booklet with 27 thousand summer job possibilities for college students has been received by the Secretary of Internal Affairs, Joe Tellone, it was announced today.

According to Tellone the booklet is a directory of summer opportunities for college students in community service.

Included in the jobs are voter education projects in the South, tutorial and community action in the North, government employment, and summer work camps.

Further information may be obtained from the Student Government Cabinet office, room 333 of the Union.

Wasn't Television

What Kept Those Indians Amused?

What kept the Savannah River Indians happy on those dark nights long ago when there was no television?

This is the question that will send an FSU anthropologist and a team of nine students back to an Indian site on the Savannah River this summer.

The team, headed by Dr. David Sutton Phelps, will travel to a location 11 miles south-southeast of Augusta. According to Phelps, there is evidence that Indians in this area definitely practiced cannibalism.

On the basis of this evidence the National Science Foundation has provided a $12,200 grant to finance the trip. "This trip," said Phelps, "should yield more evidence on the Savannah occupations than ever before."

Phelps visited the site, a crescent-shaped mound 200 by 700 feet, in September, 1983. Three feet under the surface was found a pit of about 4.5 by 3.5 feet filled with black soil. Among the pit's contents were a number of bones which showed signs of being cooked.

"The ends of about 12 bones have been cut," said Phelps, "and most show a degree of fragmentation due to handling during deposition. The pit shows no evidence of a fire in its interior, and not a single fleck of charred material was recovered."

"In view of this information," said Phelps, in describing the findings in the October, 1984 issue of "American Antiquity," "one possible interpretation is that a number of human beings, (more than four) of variable age were ritually consumed after proper preparation elsewhere."

"The remains then were deposited along with appropriate offerings." The mound, said Phelps last Monday, is in many layers, and shows that the site was occupied by various peoples from about 2,000 B.C. to the time of the great Southern plantations, a period of about 3 thousand years.

The list of equipment for the trip is 20 pages long, and contains such items as drafting equipment, brushes, and trowels. The team will utilize a laboratory in the Augusta Museum, thus precluding the use of tents. Samples from the mound will be prepared at the site and sent back to the laboratory for further analysis.

The team will be at the site from June 1 until the end of August. Asked if he foresaw any drawbacks facing the team, Phelps answered, "No—just rain, snakes, and mosquitoes."

We've saved you the trouble.

Obviously, one of the reasons the REMINGTON® ELECTRONIC II costs a bit more is because it's cordless. Works on rechargeable energy cells. Also works with a cord, if you forget to recharge. Frees you to shave upstairs. Downstairs. On the stairs. The other reasons? Read.

Sideburn trimmer. Flick off the limit case, you've got a straightedge for neat trim sideburns.

The shaver head. Biggest around. We gave it 756 slots. Once a whisker goes through, bye-bye hair.

Campus Grows

A Science Center and an Education Center are only the first steps in the University's plan to have related departments grouped together on campus.

The Science Center will be located on the western section of campus where the recently completed Physics Bldg. stands.

According to Rod Shaw, FSU business manager, a new chemistry and biology building will soon be included in this area. Eventually the Education Bldg. will be changed into classrooms for science students. The new infirmary being constructed between the Union Pool and the Women's Gym is scheduled to be completed May 1, 1966.

Directly next to the infirmary, the Social Science Bldg. will soon be underway, to be finished in Feb. of 1967.

EQUIPMENT STORAGE

Students Give Champion Third Degree

by KAREN MILLER
Flambeau Staff Writer

Integration, the job of President of FSU, and campus parking were among the main topics discussed by Dr. John Champion in a question and answer session Monday.

Dr. Champion was the first in a series of speakers for the union forum which will be every Tuesday at 4 p.m. in the Browning Lounge of the Union.

A student panel moderated by Joyce Killian and consisting of panel members Pam Gilstrap and Erik Collins took the lead in questioning Champion.

When asked about integration on the FSU campus, Champion said that he was very pleased with the way things have gone in the past few months and that there had been no problems.

One student brought up the question about inequality of pay between Negro and white staff on the campus. Champion said that he was not aware that there were different pay rates for the same job.

The university is held to a certain pay increase at this time and is not under the minimum wage rate, said Champion, in many cases pay may be lowered because of these reasons.

Collins asked Champion what the office of President of FSU entailed in general.

In answer to this question, Champion said the president was responsible for the image of the university.

Champion added that the president represents every area of the university. He is a member of the Administrative Council, the Presidents' Council, and the Faculty Senate.

The president also makes suggestions to the Board of Regents concerning the policies of FSU. Champion said it would be interesting if the students of FSU could see the presidents calendar for just one day so that they would know exactly how much the job entails. Champion also works with the alumni and frequently makes talks to them concerning FSU. He said that the most pressing question asked by the alumni concern the growth, new programs, and developments on the campus.

Another important fact brought up in the discussion was the need for more parking area on and around the campus. Champion stated that the administration sees the need for more parking area but at this time there is both a shortage of land and funds.

According to the president, the university is situated on 350 acres of land at this time and has been forced to grow up instead of out. The University is trying to keep as much of the green area as possible and the available building land is needed for academic buildings and dormitories.

Champion said that it is hoped that there will be parking garages someday and there could possibly be parking on the roofs of the buildings. He added that the ideal solution would be to have a self-sufficient parking garage.

There was a suggestion made to raise the registration fee $10 in order to help pay for the needed parking facilities.

Champion pointed out that all raises in the fee had to be approved and at this time they are asking that the fee be raised to provide for more important facilities than parking. Another question brought up concerned the profit made by the vending machines situated around the campus. Miss Gilstrap asked if the money could be used for the dormitory activities.

Champion said that the profits were put into a vending machine account under the president of FSU. The greatest portion of this fund is used to match NDEA loans made to FSU students.

It also goes to pay for Union connected luncheons and programs. FSU gets no funds for special entertainment like that provided in the dorms.

At the end of the discussion, Champion told about some of the campus improvements being made. At this time there are six new buildings under construction at FSU. These six include the geology addition, the social science building, the chemistry building and the new infirmary.

Champion said that FSU has requested $29 million from the legislature for improvements.

The remarkable Seminole baseball squad continued its dominance at bat and lucky streaks in the field when it clobbered Georgia Southern pitchers 10-4 and 6-2 Monday and Tuesday afternoons at Seminole field.

Tennis Tourney Begins Monday

The Intramural Office has scheduled a tennis tournament for the students and faculty of trimester 3A to fill the empty hours between classes and studying as well as for fun and enjoyment.

The tournament begins Monday with deadlines for entry blanks being Saturday at 5 p.m. All entries must be turned in at the Intramural Office or in room 117 in Tully Gym. Singles and doubles competition is open to all men and women students and faculty members. There will also be mixed doubles events in both divisions, student and faculty.

The cost for the tournament is $1.50 per person for the tennis balls.

Cliff Ranew chalked up number seven against two defeats in Tuesday's bout. Randy Brown had a perfect day, going three-for-three including two circuit clouts.

Brown's fifth homer of the season scored three big runs in the first inning.

After a single in the third frame, Brown connected for his second homer and two more rbi's when he sent Eagle hurler Bobby Piece's first pitch over the right field fence past Budweiser Creek.

The Tribe committed only three errors in the two game series and came through with three double plays as third baseman Gary Lawrence teamed with shortstop Maury Hopkins or second sacker Dick Fernandez and Nichols for the DP.

The twin win gave the Seminoles a 22-0 record and boosted their chances for a bid to the regional NCAA tournament at Gastonia, N.C., at the end of the month.

The Tribe played Jacksonville University yesterday afternoon at Seminole Field. The score was unavailable at press time.

Vote Today For Nine Positions Of Summer Legislative Council

Elections for seats in the summer Legislative Council will be today from 9 a.m. to 4:45 p.m.

A large turnout is not expected for this election due to the fact that there are only nine candidates seeking the nine positions in the Council. It might be possible to win on a write-in ballot, however, said Tom Farrar, commissioner of elections.

The summer Legislative Council acts as a senate for the summer trimester. It passes legislation to supplement the Student Body Statutes.

Student body Vice President Larry Gonzalez will preside over the Council this summer.

The nine candidates seeking election are George Beal, Erik Collins, Max Courtney, Mike Cudlipp, John M. Gates, Billy Kidd, Mark Mitchell, Judy Wiley and P. C. Wu. George Beal was the administrative assistant to the student body president last year. Erik Collins is the editor of the "Flambeau." Max Courtney has been appointed a member of the Board of Publications.

Mike Cudlipp is a beginning freshman and has not yet held office at FSU. John Gates has been a unit advisor at Salley Hall for the past three trimesters.

Billy Kidd was in charge of Intramurals last year. P.C. Wu occupied a Legislative Council position last

The Elections Commission has decided to try something new this year. Farrar will personally bring a ballot to each of the students in the infirmary.

Polis will be set up in front of Bryan Hall, the Library and the University Union. The elections will be conducted by the members of Sophomore Council and Alpha Phi Omega service fraternity.

Union Council Schedules New Afternoon Jazz

by PAT NOLAND

"You don't have to be a music major to understand the language of jazz," agreed the informal group of musicians who presented Sunday in Moore Auditorium the first jazz session of a weekly series.

"Jazz in the Afternoon" is sponsored by the University Union Program Council. Free to the public, different jazz groups will perform every Sunday at 3 p.m.

"It is another aspect of the Council's plans to provide a variety of things for students to do," commented Marie Williams, program director.

"No one can say exactly what jazz is," said Skip West, trombone player of the group. "Jazz is music in itself and should not be used as background or mood music. It demands the full attention of the listener."

"Actually, the musicians get as much enjoyment from their playing as the audience does. We do this as a hobby," commented Dave Collings, a graduate student in music.

"These informal sessions are the only opportunity for a musician to play what he wants to play and not what the audience demands," he continued.

"An emotional rapport is established between the audience and the performers," said Mike Aronson, piano player of the group. "It's not the same as listening to a recording. The audience gets involved when they see the performers getting involved," he concluded.

Foundation To Meet

The Florida Heritage Foundation will meet in the Tallahassee Federal Savings and Loan Association Auditorium at 5:15 p.m. Thursday. The foundation is composed of local citizens interested in preserving spots of historic interest in the community. The meeting is open to faculty, staff and students.

Be Friendly

During the third trimester the campus is infiltrated by large numbers of groups and individuals who come to visit FSU. Some these visitors come to look at FSU as their potential university; other groups are here using the facilities of our school while they are attending summer camps, workshops, or conferences.

Beginning in June, high school teachers and students will flood this campus. French institutes, Girls' and Boys' States, science, music and art camps are only a few of the events which will bring top teachers and students to our University.

FSU is known for its friendly reputation. It has always been said that being a large university has not hampered us as far as maintaining a close-knit, friendly atmosphere is concerned.

It is important for us to remember that each visitor who sets foot on our campus is a potential FSU student, alum, or supporter.

Let's make a special effort to welcome the "strangers" we see among us; let's show them that we really do have a friendly campus.

You might be the person whom the visitor meets and talks to. It might be you on whom the visitor's entire impression of FSU is founded.

"The Search" has won, among others, a National Board of Review Award.

The film features Montgomery Clift, Anne MacMahon and Wendell Corey. Admission is $2.50.

Some lucky grass has been replanted around the windowless addition to the psychology bldg. (Wonder what will happen if there is a lengthy power failure this summer?)

'No Advantage' Says Registrar

by SANDRA LITTLE
Flambeau Staff Writer

"There is no advantage to the summer trimester," said Dr. Murray Kenna, the University Registrar.

"The trimester system is not attracting more people and any growth in attendance is attributed to normal growth of the University."

"The variety of classes which may be offered is not superior to those offered under the semester system," he continued.

Also Kenna stated that he would rather have just the split semester composed of III-A and III-B than those two divisions coupled with trimester III which runs through the entire summer.

The reason for this is that the paper work increases drastically on a system such as we now have. As soon as we were placed on the trimester system, the work in the Registrar's office increased by 30%, he said.

At present, 5,277 students have registered for trimester III. The total includes 2,952 men and 2,325 women.

Almost a third of those registered are graduate students. Of 1,649 graduate students, 1,043 are men and 426 are women.

TESTS, AND HOW THEY GREW

Just the other night I was saying to the little woman, "Do you think the importance of tests in American colleges is being overemphasized?" She said, "I don't know, I'm not, as you might think, my wife. My wife is far from the little woman. She is, in fact, nearly seven feet high and matted with ripping muscles. She is a full-blooded Ogalala Sioux and holds the world's shot put record. The little woman I referred to is someone we found crouching under the sofa when we moved into our apartment back in 1929, and there she has remained ever since. She never speaks except to make a kind of guttural clicking sound when she is hungry. To tell you the truth, she's not too much fun to have around the house, but with my wife away at track meets most of the time, I at least it gives me someone to talk to. But I digress. "Do you think the importance of tests in American colleges is being overemphasized?" I said the other night to the little woman, and then I said, "Yes, Max, I do think the importance of tests in American colleges is being overemphasized." As I explained, the little woman does not speak, so when we have conversations, I am forced to do both parts.

But I digress. To get back to tests—sure, they're important, but let's not allow them to get too important. There are, after all, many talents which simply can't be measured by quizzes. It is right to penalize a gifted student whose gifts don't happen to fall into an academic category. Like, for instance, Finster Sigafoss?

She is a full-blooded Ogalala Sioux.

Finster, a freshman at the Wyoming College of Billie Letterson, is a person of identification. He never passed a single test; yet all who know him agree he is studded with talent like a ham with cloves. He can, for example, sleep standing up. He can do a perfect imitation of a scarlet antelope. He can, for example, jump over a fence. He can sing in the winter. He can pick up BB's with his toes. He can say "toy boat" three times fast. He can build a radio telephone out of 100 yards of string and two empty Personna Stainless Steel Razor Blade packages. This last accomplishment is the one Finster is proudest of—not building the telephone but emptying the Personna packs. To empty a Personna pack is not easily accomplished, believe you me, not if you're a person who likes to get full value out of his razor blades. And full value is just what Personnas deliver. They last and last and keep on lasting; luxury shaves follow luxury shaves in numbers that make the mind boggle. We don't you see for yourself? Personnas are now available in two varieties: a brand-new stainless steel injector blade for users of injector razors—and the familiar double-edge stainless steel blade so dear to the hearts and kind to the taste of so many happy Americans. Blades so smooth-shaving, so long-lasting that the Personna Co. makes the following guarantee: if you don't agree Personna gives you more luxury shaves than Bleep-Bleep or any other brand you might name, Personna will buy you a pack of whatever kind you think is better.)

But I digress. Back to Finster Sigafoss—artist, humanist, philosopher, and freshman since 1939. Will the world ever benefit from Finster's great gifts? Alas, no. He is a college to stay.

But even more tragic for mankind in the case of Clark Loom, Clark, a classmate of Finster's, had no talent, no gifts, no brains, no personality. All she had was a knack for taking tests. She would cram like mad before a test, always get a perfect score, and then promptly forget everything she had learned. Naturally, she graduated with highest honors and degrees by the dozen, but the sad fact is that she left college no more educated and no more prepared to cope with the world than she was when she entered. Today a broken woman, she crouches under my sofa.

(Dobie Gillis)

Speaking of tests, we, the makers of Personna, put our blades through an impressive number before we send them to market. We also make—and thoroughly test—an aerosol shave foam that's as good as any other either: Burma Shave, regular and menthol.

Gastonia - Maybe

By MELODIE BETTS
Flambeau Sports Editor

The FSU baseball team is nationally bound again... maybe.

Once again the Seminole squad is in contention for the regional NCAA tournament in Gastonia, N.C. and once again FSU may not make the finals.

The reasons are many and varied. Two points against the Tribe lie in two voting members of the Gastonia committee.

One member coach wants his team to compete in the tournament. If FSU and his squad have equal records, he will favor his team for the position.

Another voting member is the coach of a squad which has already proven itself worthy of a definite bid to the regionals. However, the coach is a bit dubious about beating the strong Seminole squad.

If FSU ties the record of wins and losses with another college, all one has to do is compare schedules and find that the Tribe has had one of the toughest baseball schedules in the Southeast.

If another coach fears our strength beating his team, he's probably right.

The FSU baseball 'Nine' has a fairly decent, in fact outstanding, record, sporting 23 wins against six losses. Seven games remain in the season, including four with the Gators of Florida.

The Tribe boasts a powerhouse lineup with seven of its regular starters batting over .300.

Coach Fred Hatfield's hitters are supported by the Tribe's excellent pitching staff which rarely requires relief-men.

The Seminoles have one more credit to add to their overall record, they are ranked number six in the nation.

The records and statistics are in and the decision is being made now. The Tribe stands on its merits.

Gym Instruction Available Daily

Seminole coaches, would you like to keep trim this summer?

You can at the same time possibly earn a position on the internationally famous FSU Women's Gymnastics team by attending gymnastic classes any afternoon at 3 p.m. in Tully Gym. The classes are open to all interested women students, instructing the sessions is Miss Gail Songer who finished ninth in the 1964 Olympic Trials and is the first woman to make the Seminole Gymnastics Hall of Fame.

Plan To Sell
FSU To Town

Tallahassee businessmen are trying to sell FSU to the town. They are being conducted by Dr. John N. Grogg, director of the Center for Social Research, which has FSU faculty members anonymously express their opinions on the university as it is and as it should be.

A survey was requested by the Faculty Relations Committee of Tallahassee Chamber of Commerce. Roughly half of the questions raised out have been received.

The emphasized the need for a more responsive from the faculty. The results of the survey are as follows:

First questionnaire offers the faculty members selection of a chance to describe their likes and dislikes in Tallahassee. Background information, each of the faculty persons requested to help evaluate the response.

The questionnaire takes into account each of residence in Tallahassee, community participation, family commitments,

Student Killed

An automobile accident near Jacksonville, Wednesday morning killed one FSU student and injured another. The student was dead on arrival at the Jacksonville County Hospital where the late model car he was driving struck a bridge railing. The driver of the car, Thomas Grogg, was reported in fair condition with neck, chest and back injuries.

According to the Florida Highway Patrol, the car was heading south on U.S. 90 when it drifted onto the line road and struck the side of a bridge railing. The automobile came to rest on top of the eastbound lane, blocking off the railing.

Supreme Court Reverses Case

The United States Supreme Court has reversed the trespassing conviction of two white FSU students, John Farrar and Dennis Flood, the students involved demonstrated with Negro students at a local restaurant in the fall of 1963.

Employing so-called "hit and run" tactics, the group of five demonstrators attempted to enter the Mecca. They were asked to leave by the manager and finally arrested. The Negroes were acquitted but Farrar and Flood were each sentenced to $100 fine or 30 days in jail.

Beach Party Set

A beach party at a new man-made sand-glide near Panama is being sponsored by the FSU Wesley Foundation tomorrow. All who wish to attend should sign up at the Foundation by noon today. The party will begin at 9 a.m. when cars begin leaving for the site. Cost is $4.00. Anyone who can bring a car is especially welcome. The cars will be returning to Tallahassee around 4 p.m.

FSCW faded a little further into the past today when Student Body President James L. Groot announced several changes in FSU's much criticised women's rules. Greater freedom in visiting men student's apartments and increases in certain out-of-dorm time allowances were the furthest extent of most of the changes.

In accordance with precedent, the rule changes will take effect in the fall trimester.

Groot praised the "fine work" of Pam Mozur and the Women's Senate in effecting these changes.

In answer to questions raised about students ability to accept these added responsibilities, Groot said "I believe students have wanted some of these changes long enough and had enough that they will more than willingly accept the responsibilities."

Specific rule changes include:

- 1) allowing upperclass women to attend apartment parties if two or more couples are present—eliminating need to have each party approved.
- 2) increasing senior automatics from eight to 12 hours per trimester.
- 3) moving beginning of dorm visiting hours from noon to 10 a.m. daily.
- 4) allowing each dorm to set its own schedule for use of telephones, after closing hours.
- 5) increasing overnight stays in Tallahassee from three overall to six per trimester for upperclassmen and four for first trimester freshmen.

6) eliminating limit on overnight out-of-town trips for transfer students—formerly three per trimester maximum.

7) changing dorm closing hours on night following last final exam and night of commencement to 12:30 a.m. Discovery that these changes had been agreed to by the administration came when Groot inquired through the Dean of Student's office as to the disposition of several measures approved by Women's Senate.

Several students had questioned Groot about rumors to the effect that changes in the rules were imminent.

Col. John K. Arnold, Associate Dean of Students, said he was "very pleased" that the changes had been made and that they had been made through normal channels within Student Government.

"I think this is a fine example of how Student Government could and should operate," commented Arnold.

The package of suggested changes came out of Women's Senate at the end of the spring trimester and were turned over to the Dean of Women's office.

From there the suggested changes were passed on to the Dean of Students office where final approval was granted.

Simultaneously with the processing of these changes a committee appointed by the faculty senate was studying possible non-academic rule changes.

Laundry Shown Lacking: Survey

The laundry at Alumni Village was shown to be inadequate in facilities and maintenance in a survey headed by Student Senator Joe Hartley.

According to Hartley the survey was conducted to show the areas of greatest need to be considered when the new addition to the laundry is built.

Hartley said that although 50% of the residents polled complained of too few washers and 60% gripped about the machines being inoperative, over 65% were satisfied with the overall laundry situation. "Another comment made by residents was that the laundry needs better maintenance because the area is usually dirty."

Polled residents also said a clock and more laundry carts were needed. According to Hartley these deficiencies are being remedied.

Children playing in the laundry area was another gripe by these polled. To help alleviate this problem signs have been posted and parents have been instructed to help keep their children under supervision, said Hartley.

Hard-Fought Election Goes To Nine Candidates; Wu Tops Vote

In a closely-contested and hard-fought race, P. C. Wu won Tuesday's summer Legislative Council election with Mark Mitchell coming in for a close second.

One chagrined voter commented, this is the most ridiculous election ever conducted at FSU since there are only nine candidates running for nine positions in the Council."

There was a limited turnout at the polls with only 231 ballots being cast.

The small turnout was due partially to some students not having a blue activity card, said Tom Farrar, commissioner of elections. These students were turned away from the polls in order to guard against dual voting and other forms of cheating.

Another factor contributing to the lack of voter participants was the closing of the polling station in front of Bryan Hall. This left only two stations open, one in front of the Library and the other in front of the University Union, said Farrar.

The winners of the election in order of the most votes received were P. C. Wu, Mark Mitchell, Erik L. Collins, George Beal, Max Courtney, John M. Gates, Judy Wiley, Mike Cuddip, and Billy Kidd.

Movie Tonight

Audiences at 9:30 showings of recent campus movies have necessitated cancellation of all late showings until next summer trimester. Beginning this week showings will be at 7:30 only, Friday and Saturday nights.

"The Greatest Show on Earth" is this week's attraction. The Cecil B. DeMille spectacular is an extravagant tribute to the traditions of the "Big Top."

Women's Rules

Let's Go For Both

The new regulations originating from the legislation introduced in the 1964-65 Women's Senate were approved by the Dean of Women and Dean of Students May 14. These changes will now go into effect in September.

The seven changes have long been needed. Each one of them provides for extended freedom and the assumption of additional responsibility for our women students. The number of nights which a woman student can spend in Tallahassee has been increased from three for all students to six for upperclassmen and four for first term freshmen. The number of absences suggested by the women senators seems reasonable although we do question why the senators did not write the bill to provide for an unlimited number of Tallahassee weekends for upperclassmen.

Senior women will now be permitted to take up to 12 hours of senior automatics rather than the present 8 hours.

The bill as it originated in Women's Senate provided for unlimited senior automatics: it was amended by the women senators to only increase the existing number. Again, it seems as if the ultimate goal would be for unlimited senior automatics. The restriction as to number again came from the Women's Senate.

Beginning in September, upperclasswomen students will be able to attend afternoon and evening parties in men's apartments. It will no longer be necessary to have these parties approved. The only stipulation is that there be two or more couples attending the party.

This change has been long overdue. For years, the women students on this campus have not upheld the existing apartment rule. We believe the policy that will be in effect next year should be upheld by all women students for it is reasonable. Women will now be permitted to decide for themselves whether they wish to attend a party at a man's apartment.

This year's Women's Senate should be commended on the work it did to change the outdated infamous apartment rule. The Dean's office should also be commended for awareness of the necessity for changing the regulations and their careful investigation into possible changes.

It is felt that the new policies which came out of a joint effort on the part of the Women's Senate and the Dean's office is of major significance in the establishment of students' rights with responsibilities.

The Women's Senate bills were carefully reviewed by the Dean of Women and Dean of Students. Changes which the women senators sought were approved. The changes made were good.

Students should look at these changes as a demonstration of the results of following the normal process of change. Students wishing additional changes should now realize the Women's Senate does have power and it is the senators that one should see rather than complaining about the administration taking no action. Before you complain, take the proper action yourself.

For the last five years the main goal for FSU has been to be rated in the top ten in football and in academics.

Football looks more promising than ever, but any promise FSU had five years back of being one of the ten great universities of the United States is steadily diminishing as its library continues to drop almost out of sight among the great universities.

The association of Research Libraries report indicates that FSU spent $240,875 for books during the past year. For the same period, the University of California at Los Angeles spent $1,440,120 and the University of California at Berkeley spent $1,419,148.

It is not just the heavily tax endowed system in California that outstrips the efforts here at FSU. In the South alone, the following universities outspent FSU: Texas, LSU, North Carolina, Duke, Tennessee, Florida, Virginia, Kentucky, Johns Hopkins, Vanderbilt and Peabody.

If we are going to build a strong library, or better yet a great library, we will have to follow the same path used by those who build football teams.

The cure is money and lots of it. Money spent on books, facilities staff and faculty is required to build a great library. Certainly the tax payer will have to pay the price. But it is a price the taxpayer can afford.

The taxpayer's children cannot afford to pay it and neither can the state of Florida's educational system.

The decision is ours to make. We have arrived in football, but which is the most important? There is no need to ask this question of a GREAT university, for it can have both... if it will.

It CAN Happen To You!

Over the years we have time and time again cautioned those who wear diamonds that reasonable care should be given them. They are nature's hardest gem stone but even they can be struck in a cleavage direction (with the grain line) can easily split. This splitting is described as a lack of toughness.

Not long ago one of our customers came to us with a disturbed, and we might add quite angry. Her complaint was that the diamond set back in her home state was misinterpreted the stone was wearing as a diamond and on what grounds could she sue him. We asked her permission to examine the ring and discovered immediately that the stone she was wearing was a diamond. The diamond apparently had received a hard blow right on its edge (girdle). When questioned about it she quickly readily admitted slipping it on the bath tub and in returning her balance happened to hit the diamond hard against the tile wall.

After removing the diamond from the setting we were able to see the damage was largely a thin cleavage on the pavilion, (lower part of the diamond) and recutting the stone was a slightly smaller diamond the damage could be entirely eliminated. In the final analysis the stone was recut in correct shape and the polish on each of the 58 facets was considerably improved.

When shown the recut diamond she could hardly believe it was her diamond. Best of all the increased value from having the stone correctly fashioned more than compensated for the cutting cost.

The moral of this story is to let your jeweler know the diamond while still in the "King of Gems" does call for reasonable care on the part of the owner. If it receives this it will last for generations to come.

For the past decade students have demanded modern campus rules to rule us in a modern age. Senate resolutions have been disregarded in the past, but at this point we intend to make it clear that such negligence is of the past.

The Senate has drafted an apartment bill that reflects modern thinking on personal freedom. Our keepers intend to "pocket veto" the bill—why else would they delay signing for so long?

On that bill rides the good faith and dedicated effort of our best students. It cannot, it shall not be discarded! We demand action, now! Sign it!

Union To Sponsor Lessons In Swimming For Campus Youths

The University Union will offer swimming lessons to children of married students, faculty and staff beginning trimester III-B. Dr. Herb F. Reinhard, assistant director of the University Union, announced today.

Classes for children 7-10 years old will be Mondays and Wednesdays from 1:30-2:30 p.m. at the Reservation. Registration for this age group is scheduled for 9 a.m. to noon Monday, June 7, in the Union main lounge. Classes will begin Monday, June 21.

Children between 10-12 years old will have instruction Tuesdays and Thursdays beginning June 22. The classes will be in the University Union pool from 1:30-2:30 p.m. Registration will be Tuesday, June 8 from 9 a.m. to noon in the Union main lounge.

A maximum number of 25 children will be enrolled for each of the two classes. There is a possibility of adding classes if a number of children desiring to enroll demands additional classes.

Each child must be registered by his parent in the Union lounge. There will be a registration fee of $3. No additional charge will be made for the 10 lessons but every child will be requested to furnish his own "kickboard."

Two fully qualified instructors employed by the Union will instruct each class.

Geography Dept. Gets Grant; Summer Teacher Institute Set

Under a new grant of $56,200 FSU will have a summer institute for upper elementary and junior high school teachers of geography June 21-Aug. 13.

The funds are from the National Defense Education Act as revised last year to provide for history and geography institutes.

William R. Brueckheimer, chairman of the dept. of geography, will be director of the institute. J. R. Streeter, head of the Social Studies Education dept., will be associate director.

The FSU program has been designed for thirty participants. Objective of the eight-week institute is to help teachers who need additional background in geography.

The institute will provide intensive training in the nature of geography, the elements of systematic geography and case studies in regional geography, Brueckheimer said.

"Unfortunately, only a very small proportion of the teachers of geography in Florida, the Southeastern United States or in the United States as a whole have the background and training to teach geography effectively."

ively, and adequately," Brueckheimer said.

"This is true of teachers in grades four through six as well as prospective teachers of the new ninth grade course. In the state of Florida, for example, certification standards do not require any work in geography for elementary certification."

"On the secondary level only six hours of geography are now required for students seeking certification as social studies teachers."

"In addition, certification does not recognize geography as a primary field for certification at the present time. The number of geography teachers, therefore, who have had more than six or nine hours of geography is small indeed, if not almost infinitesimal."

Serving on the teaching staff will be Eugene C. Kirchherr, associate professor of geography, Western Michigan University; Edward A. Fernald, assistant professor of education at FSU; and Clifford G. Hale, professor of social studies education.

In The Good Old Summertime

Trimester III has descended upon the FSU student body and signs of summer may be seen in any casual walk across campus.

The usual hustle-bustle of trimester I and II is lacking as students lounge under trees, watch FSU baseball, swim in the Union pool, sunbathe behind Salley Hall, or make weekend treks to the coast.

The most popular scenes on campus during the summer months are couples walking hand-in-hand, sitting by Landis Fountain at night, or watching the moon from any semi-secluded spot.

AMERICA'S DANCING TEACHER FOR 51 YEARS

DON WILLET, LICENSEE

ABILITY TO READ A NEWSPAPER

... is considered the best sign for adult literacy said Dr. Edwin Smith to the new class for training teachers of adult literates.

400,000 In Florida

Adult Illiterates Subject Of FSU Study

Teaching an estimated 400 thousand illiterates in Florida is the subject of study for 20 students in a class, first of the kind in the state, which has just gotten underway here this week.

Teaching adults is probably more difficult than teaching children, according to Edwin H. Smith, the instructor. But teaching adults who are illiterate is one of the big challenges of the teaching profession.

A student body is difficult to recruit, failure to learn frequently means a student will leave class and never come back.

"The self-concepts of these people are so badly damaged that they are suspicious of people trying to help them," he said.

The course work goes into methods, materials and approaches used to reach illiterate students. Diagnostic methods are used to determine such considerations as whether prospective readers have the ability to learn the basic concepts of mathematics, English and social studies. Students launch themselves on a reading interest in such fields; and problems of programming material for self-study.

Dr. Smith said it is hoped and expected that programmed courses shortly will be available with illiterates, given a start toward use of the printed word, will be able to reach themselves.

The estimate of 400 thousand functional illiterates in Florida was made by Smith, who bases the figure on the number of persons, as shown by the 1960 census, who reported they had never completed the seventh grade.

Completion of the seventh grade now is used to describe functional illiterate instead of completion of the fifth, which has been used in the past.

The best of all tests of literacy, said Smith, is ability to read a newspaper. "The newspaper, moreover, is one of the best educational tools there is, and the students learning to read literacy education will devote some time to teaching their students how to read a regular newspaper and how to write and put together a class newspaper," he said.

The 20 students in the course, which is jointly offered by the Elementary Education and Adult Education departments, include a doctoral candidate from India who hopes to take some techniques to help solve illiteracy problem several times as big as this country's.

There is a tremendous shortage of teachers trained in literacy education, said Smith. This shortage exists at a time, moreover, when the federal government particularly is showing increasing concern about illiteracy.

The Poverty Program, among others, has illiteracy as a primary concern, Smith said that Florida anticipates receiving about half a million federal dollars during the next fiscal year and twice as much the following year for adult basic education, which is primarily illiteracy education.

Smith has been concerned with teaching reading to adults for several years.

Bacteria May Cause Rust Says Expert In Oceanographic Institute

Much of the deterioration that has been blamed on rust may actually be caused by bacterial action said Dr. Carl H. Oppenheimer of the Oceanographic Institute.

For the past five years Oppenheimer has been studying the corrosion of steel caused by bacteria. He said that underwater the steel collects barnacles, algae and worms which serve as a food supply for the bacteria.

As the bacteria eat this rich food supply and utilize its energy for growth they set in motion a process which destroys the steel, he continued.

According to Oppenheimer, steel surfaces exposed to sea water, water, and salt spray, or surface isn't protected. The cause is what protection will prevent bacterial decay.

Plastic coatings have been effective but, as Oppenheimer pointed out, the slightest puncture or corrosion to begin. According to the most practical way of protecting exposed metal is galvanizing, a car manufacturer now advises that the under-surfaces of there are so treated.

Seminoles Receive NCAA Bid

By MELODIE BETTS
Flambeau Sports Editor

The deadline for statistics for the NCAA tournament at Gastonia was Monday morning. That afternoon FSU received a bid to the tournament. Coach Fred Hatfield accepted Tuesday morning.

This marks the eighth time in 11 years that the Tribe baseball squad has been to Gastonia. During that period they have twice won the chance to compete in the national finals.

"Third time is the charm time, they say," says Hatfield. The team is confident of doing well. "I hope they aren't too confident, but then if you can't believe in yourself, who can you believe in?" he added. The Seminoles will face Southern Conference winner Mississippi State in their opener next Thursday. "If we can get past that first game," says Hatfield optimistically, "we should be able to go all the way."

Also competing are the SEC Champ, Furman, and the Atlantic Coast winner, Maryland.

Hatfield will rely on his squad's strong hitting, pitching, and reserve strength.

Debating between Cliff Rane and Gary Stringfellow for starting pitcher, Hatfield speaks highly of Mississippi State, its pitching staff, and the "five excellent left-handers in its lineup."

Rane has a 7-2 record, an earned-run average of 1.65 and has struck out 64 batters in 82 innings. Stringfellow boasts a 5-2 record with an era of 2.95 and has 50 strikeouts to his credit.

The team batting average is .303 with 14 men hitting over the .300 mark. The Tribe has hit 50 doubles, 16 triples and 29 home runs in 31 games for a slugging percentage of .465.

Third baseman Gary Lawrence leads the team with a .396 batting average. Randy Brown leads in the home run category with six, rbi's with 32 and stolen bases with 11. Dick Fernandez leads in hits, runs, total bases and is second in rbi's with 27.

Maury Hopkins holds his own with a .250 batting average. Leads the team with eight doubles, is second in total bases and third in rbi's.

Strengthening the power-laden

Seminole line-up will be the return of outfielders Bob Wilcox and Mike

Martin and third baseman Gerry Chmielewski.

Wilcox is expected to see limited action this weekend in Gainesville, Gastonia.

Chmielewski will probably return to his third base duties in Gastonia. Martin will have the cast removed from his arm next week and it is hoped that he will play ball in the national finals at Omaha if the Tribe can win in Gastonia.

Before heading to North Carolina for the NCAA tournament, the Tribe travels south to Gator-land for two games with the University of Florida today and tomorrow.

The Seminole "Nine" wants to keep up the FSU tradition of smothering the Gators and is looking forward to two victories.

The final home game will be Monday at Seminole Field beginning at 3 p.m. against Pensacola State. This will be the last chance for fans to see the squad before it leaves for action this weekend in Gainesville, Gastonia.

Carnival' Begins Tomorrow Night

TWO STEALTHY THIEVES

Justice meaking around during dress rehearsal for "Thieves' Carnival" which opens tomorrow night in Conradi Theatre.

by KAREN MILLER
Flambeau Staff Writer

The home of two attractive young women is invaded by three affectionate thieves and two fortune hummers in the "madcap farce" "Thieves' Carnival" which opens tomorrow at 8:30 p.m. in Conradi Theatre.

The play will have evening performances through Saturday with a Sunday matinee at 2:30 p.m. The admission price is $7.75 for students and $1.50 for non-students.

"Thieves' Carnival" by Jean Anouilh is the most successful of the author's works in the United States. It is an excellent lark, loaded with humorous whims, romance and masquerades, say critics.

The scene is set in a palatial home where the two attractive women reside. A lovely romance blooms instantly between one of the girls and the youngest thief.

Being a very honest fellow, he cannot in good conscience accept her love and instead turns with vengeance toward his job. But she, being swifter in her wiles than he is in his, succeeds in capturing him in marriage.

Something Far More Valuable

Voter Registration

The FSU campus ministers, in cooperation with existing community organizations, are now sponsoring a community service project which to us seems quite worthwhile.

The pilot "voter registration and education program" which will be May 30 through June 12 in the Negro community near our campus deserves the support of all students interested in community service and civil rights.

The pilot program will serve as an introduction to a larger community program in September.

Students will work from 5:30-7:30 each day. It is not necessary for a student to work every day in order to participate. This is an excellent way in which to spend one or two nights a week during the summer trimester.

Those students interested in this project should call 224-2612. A training workshop will be May 30 at 8 p.m. at the Wesley Foundation. All participants must be in attendance.

Mr. Herlock's cartoon which appears in the lower left hand corner of this page is most apropos to the existing situation in the Florida Legislature. There seems to be a "hold the line...do not spend" philosophy entrenched in our legislative body this session. Of course this philosophy is completely non-political and is in no way influenced by the forthcoming 1966 elections. No sir, this "no spending" policy is designed to save the taxpayer money. At first glance this seems to be a worthy cause, for no one prefers to pay more for a license tag or a pack of cigarettes. As a matter of fact, this might be an excellent legislative position if all we dealt with was dollars and cents. But we are dealing with something far more valuable than cold cash. We are talking about the future of Florida's, and the nation's, most valuable asset—the preschool and school age child. We all admit to the established fact that our state's libraries are understocked and understaffed, that our school textbooks are overworked and underpaid, that our schools are underfunded and overburdened. These conditions are not temporary or diminishing. The tragedy is that Florida, the fastest growing state in the Union, lags far behind national standards in coping with the problems of persistent poverty and ignorance. There are dependent nations, could qualify as foreign aid.

I know of only one sure means of our post-depression misery. MONEY WELL SPENT. Sure, the money will come from the taxpayer, but why not? We are not giving money away, we are making an investment. In simple rhetoric, our taxpayer can trade a little of his present to insure his children's future. California met with these same problems more than 10 years ago and they forged ahead to build one of the greatest educational systems in the world. And my friends, nobody gave California the buildings, teachers and buses. They paid for them—and by the way, mean taxpayers. The question in Florida today appears to be: Can votes be bought without spending money? If this is the case, we are not selling our future, but rather we are selling the future of our state, of ourselves, and of our children.

Personnel Files Provide Info To Help Committees Says Tellone

"We will choose committee members for the upcoming school year by using our personnel files," said Secretary of Internal Affairs Joe Tellone today.

"This file has been in existence for the past three years but has never been used except in minor instances," said Tellone.

The purpose of the files is to bring students who are not directly associated with student government into the organization, he said.

Under this system, any student interested in participating in student government affairs may fill out an activities sheet, stating their preferences as to the offices they would like to fill.

"We will try to place these people in positions where they will be both content and fruitful to the organization," Tellone stated.

"We have been through our files and have made a list of each person in school this summer and have sent letters asking each of them if he is still interested in student government work," he said.

Anyone listed in the files who is still interested must contact Tellone so he can bring his files up to date. "This system will enable us to get rid of the dead wood," said Tellone. "We will continue this procedure through the fall until every name in the file has been either disregarded due to lack of interest, or is put into the current files," he said.

Don't I Know You?

Parlors Out, Direct Approach In

by BETH LEARN
Flambeau Staff Writer

"Hey, you hunk! I'd like to get to know you." That's what she's thinking, she only says, "Excuse me, I'll know you!"

The race is on and the female sex, spurred on by men-shortage statistics, old-maid-panic and stiff competition, seems more than ever determined not to be caught sitting in parlors and dropping handkerchiefs.

In fact, handkerchief dropping went with bustles, so women have developed newer, more original schemes "catching HIS eye."

In a large coed campus such as FSU, it only seems natural that a woman would lose a building, need more information, mistake some one for her cousin or complain about registration lines.

If she's brave enough, and the time seems right, she might just walk over and introduce herself to the man she has in mind.

Dr. Albert Ellis, New York psychiatrist and marriage counselor is all for what he has termed the "legitimate pick-up." This he defines as a woman who doesn't wait to be noticed by a certain man or to meet him by chance, but is a go-get-em.

In the May issue of "Mademoiselle" Ellis writes, "The first rule for a 'legitimate pick-up' is to select the man you want to meet and make the overtures yourself. This is what makes it legitimate."

"If you allow a man to pick you up, you may find you have caught the eye of a headline-making sex fiend." The practice of "picking-out," becomes the art of "picking-in." The range of selectivity widens from a possible 20 men that a woman might meet in a year, to a possible 150. If a woman is job hunting, she checks out many possibilities before choosing the right one. "It is only reasonable that the search for a truly worthwhile man... should require at least an equal amount of time, concentration and care in the pre-marital auditioning of partners."

FSU student, Craig Calvin, comments, "The male and female can now exchange opinions which were once considered 'taboo.' As Max Lerner said in his lecture here, 'There is a more open-minded society among us' (meaning the boy-girl relationship.)"

Of course, the male still takes the major step forward when it comes to initiative. Then again, there are many girls who "place themselves in a position where the male has to almost run into them." Calvin feels that was fortunate for him that such an "accident" occurred.

"Only one experience like this has happened to me. While standing in the lobby of a Boston Hotel last summer, a girl did come up to me and asked if I were her cousin from Virginia. And do you know what? ... I was!"

Whether or not a male will see through the scheme is the chance the female takes.

MELVIN'S MAGNETIC UNIVERSE

... is explained by M. A. Melvin, professor of physics, who developed the model of the field.

Astro-Physicists Now Studying Dr. 'Melvin's Magnetic Universe'

"Melvin's Magnetic Universe," a cylinder-shaped configuration of magnetic lines of force, is receiving much attention by theoretical astro-physicists.

The model universe was developed by FSU Physics Prof. M. A. Melvin and is being used in the attempt to explain the powerful heavenly radiations called "quasars."

Most scientists now think these "quasars," representing radiations of energy far greater than anything ever observed before in the heavens and coming from as far as 10 billion light years away, are from the "gravitational collapse" of a super-star, equivalent in mass to one hundred million suns.

To explain why such a collapse, or implosion, of a star can be responsible for continuous radiation of energy, rather than a brief burst as when a balloon is popped, some stabilizing or delaying force must be assumed to be at work.

Through the study of Melvin's "magnetic universe" magnetism has been demonstrated theoretically to be such a stabilizing force, slowing down and possibly even preventing gravitational collapse in its final stages.

Gravitational collapse, Melvin explained, is an occurrence predicted by Einstein's theory of relativity. As a large object contracts, its internal pressure, and therefore its effective gravitational mass, becomes greater.

The gravitational pull on itself increases to a point where the object goes into a spasm and collapses inwardly, resulting in the release of an enormous amount of energy.

Because of the tremendous amount of energy released by the quasars, radiating at a rate one hundred times greater than the brightest galaxies, gravitational collapse of a super star having a mass some hundred million times that of our own sun has been posed as an explanation of these quasars.

About 50 quasars, some as far as 10 billion light years away, have been discovered.

One of the difficulties of this explanation, Melvin said, is that the time scale is much too short according to present theories of spherically symmetric gravitational collapse without magnetic fields.

Little energy is released in gravitational collapse until the density becomes very high and then a great deal is released within a very short time.

JOHN M. SHAW

... laughs while reading a new addition to the children's classics books collection in Strozler Library.

Poetry Gold Mine

Book Collection 'Money In The Bank'

The childhood in Poetry Collection was considered a "gold mine" when it was given to Strozler Library, but it has proved more like "money in the bank."

The original collection of 5,111 volumes has grown to approximately double this number in the last five years.

John McKay Shaw, a retired A. T. T. executive from New York City, built up the unusual collection over a 30-year period of diligent searching, gave the collection to FSU in 1960 and since then has been at work cataloging it. One good clue to the present size is that he cataloged the 7,075 book this week, in the middle of the letter S of the author catalog. It contains the first book printing of English and American poems relating to childhood.

Many if not most of the books are first editions. The collection therefore is of special interest to rare book fans.

Graduate students and others doing research with the collection find added zest by being able to examine issued, and sometimes in several slightly different editions. Scholars always want the current issue of a book, if possible.

A real prize among rare books has just been acquired for the collection which is housed in the basement of the Library.

A first edition of "A Book of Nonsense" by Edward Lear, the English artist who first popularized the limerick, more than a century ago and whose nonsense poems still are found in most anthologies of children's verse, was added.

The collection already had one very rare edition of the popular "Nonsense Book," the first American edition, published in Philadelphia in 1863.

So far as Shaw knew only the Library of Congress and University of California have this edition. He spotted the first English edition in an English bookseller's list, and with funds made available by Friends of the Library a purchase order was promptly mailed.

Lear, a landscape painter who lived from 1812 to 1888, was engaged as a young man to make drawings of the birds in the private zoo of the Earl of Derby. During off hours he entertained the numerous children in the household with funny drawings and limericks.

Drawings and limericks were put together and published in "A Book of Nonsense" in 1866 and it immediately became popular over the English-speaking world. Although Lear did not invent the limerick he started the practice, which has continued to this day, of writing and editing them Shaw said.

Here's one of Lear's:

There was an old man of Calcutta,
Who perpetually ate bread and butter.

Till a great bit of muffin
On which he was stuffing,

Choked that hard old man of Calcutta.

Shaw said he considers some of the most important books in the collection to be the estimated one thousand bound volumes of children's periodicals.

One could hardly study the family life, literature, culture, or education of the 19th century in Britain and America without giving consideration to the children's periodicals which were so important during this time said Shaw.

As a boy in Scotland Shaw recalls his own fascination with the stories, poetry, illustrations and how-to-do-it instructions in a British monthly called "The Boy's Own Paper."

Radiocarbon Dating Laboratory Created For Geology Department

A Radiocarbon Laboratory has been set up in the geology bldg. to establish dates in geology, archaeology, oceanography ranging from 100 to 50,000 years ago.

Already the laboratory has been used in establishing more than 60 dates in field research.

Among them shell materials from a bore hole 43 feet below present sea level at Sapelo Island, Georgia, was found to be 27,720 years old.

Charcoal from an Indian mound in Walton County was dated 3,085 years old and charred wood from a shell midden in Baldwin County, Georgia is 3,275 years old.

The equipment, valued at about $40,000, was obtained with the aid of two grants to FSU from the National Science Foundation. One was to H. Grant Goudell, a geologist, for research in which he uses dating extensively. The other was an institutional grant.

The Carbon 14 lab is particularly useful in dating long cores of sediments obtained by graduate students of geology on cruises.

NSF research ship Eltanin, for example, helps date underwater tree trunks some hundreds or thousands of years old, along the Gulf shoreline.

The process of age-determining is based upon radioactive decay which is formed by cosmic rays in the upper atmosphere about 40 feet above the earth's surface.

This radioactive carbon (C-14) combines with simple atoms to form a radioactive version of common compound, carbon dioxide.

At the earth's surface, this radioactive carbon dioxide is taken up by plants and animals and mixes with the ocean's waters and earth's soil. When a plant or animal dies, the water loses contact with the atmosphere, then there is gradual decay and no gain of radioactivity.

AGE OF FIELD RESEARCH SAMPLES

... can now be determined in the Radiocarbon Laboratory in the Geology Bldg.

'Thieves' Carnival' Continues Tonight

"Thieves' Carnival," a four-act comedy, is presented in Conrad Theatre tonight and tomorrow evening at 8:30 p.m., with a 2:30 p.m. matinee. The play, written by Jean Anouilh, will provide a parade of novel features, a one-man theater on stage.

The "orchestra" will be led by Lormand, a graduate music student who will play the unusual role of "conversing with other characters and

"commenting" upon the play's action with his clarinet.

Lormand's clarinet provides the play with what the French playwright Jean Anouilh called the "rhythm of life" as he follows the play's action through arguments, love scenes, and intrigues in Vichy France. And to add to the French flavor is the fact that Lormand himself is of full French ancestry.

But Lormand doesn't doubt his lines with a clarinet. His spoken ones are for a British accent, a somewhat difficult demand for a French-American youth. But after weeks of practice, he now sounds as English as Buckingham Palace, say co-workers.

Yet the British accent wasn't the most difficult task for the young clarinetist. Getting accustomed to "being among the spectators is the hardest thing," says Lormand.

In an orchestra or even a dance band, the musician is separate from the audience, he said, but in this play actors are moving around him and looking over his shoulder.

Lormand is a recent graduate of the Juilliard School of Music in New York and now a candidate for the Master of Music degree here. After graduating in August, he will become teacher of woodwinds at DeKalb College in Atlanta.

Season's Final Concert Tonight

The University Symphony will present their final concert of the season tonight at 8:15 p.m. in Opperman Music Hall.

The concert is free and open to the public.

Participating in the program will be 11 guest conductors from all parts of the country who have just completed a concentrated one week conference, the Conducting Symposium for Young Experienced Conductors.

Directing the Symposium was Richard Burkin, FSU professor of music, assisted by Robert Sedore, conductor of the University Symphony. The concert program will be selected from the repertoire studied by the conductors during the Conducting Symposium. Included in the nine selections will be "Symphony No. 2, (Little Russia)," by Tchaikovsky, "Music for Shakespeare's 'Romeo and Juliet'" by Diamond, and "Prelude to Afternoon of a Faun," by Debussy.

Also "Serenade No. 10," by Mozart, "Siegfried Idyll," by Wagner, and "Oceit," by Stravinsky.

Jim Groot Addresses Legislative Council

by DAVE NELSEN

Flambeau News Editor

Swearing in of newly elected summer Legislative Council Senators and a state of the University address highlighted the summer Legislative Council meeting Wednesday night.

Chief Justice of the Honor Court Don Loucks presented official certificates of election to nine newly elected senators. Sworn in were Max Courtney, Erik Collins, George Beal, Billy Kidd, P. C. Wu, Mark Mitchell, John Gates, Judy Wiley, and Mike Cudlipp.

Student Body President Jim Groot made his first state of the University address which is to be made once each trimester.

Speaking of his first 60 days in office Groot said, they have "not only been days of learning and planning but also days of what I feel are genuine inroads into building a better Student Government and a better University."

Groot said student government has sent delegations to the Associated Student Governments (ASG) and the Southern University Student Government Association (SUSGA) conventions recently. FSU was very successful politically and academically at these conferences he said. Student Government activity with the State Legislature was also cited by Groot. He said they have worked with State Senator Pete Gibson in mailing five thousand letters to FSU students asking them to support a law school here. Groot also has addressed the Senate committee on higher learning on the same subject.

In a joint program with the FSU Office of development, Student Government "wrote letters to key members of the State Government asking for more library funds. At this point it seems we will get an additional increase of $500 thousand a year during the next biennium," stated Groot.

Changing the subjects to campus situations Groot said Homecoming and Legislative Recognition Day plans are well under way.

Other Student Government programs mentioned by Groot include plans to have a special football season ticket for wives, evaluation of the role of the Honor Bureau, and seating at football games. Also creation of a Student Government library, and preparation of the faculty evaluation results.

JIM GROOT

delivered his state of the University address at the summer Legislative Council meeting Wednesday night.

Skelton Named Union Secretary

The appointment of Cindy Skelton to serve on the Cabinet of Student Body President Jim Groot as Secretary of the University Union Board was announced today.

Miss Skelton's duties will include voting membership on the Union Board and serving as official Union hostess. She will also serve as a liaison between the President of the Student Body and the Union Board. Miss Skelton has been a Student Senator and a member of the "Tally Ho" staff. She has also participated in committee work.

In making the appointment Groot said, "I am impressed by Cindy's determination to do a good job."

CINDY SKELTON

THIEVES DISGUISED AS WOMEN

Discusses plans in the comedy "Thieves' Carnival" to be presented in Conrad Theatre tonight and tomorrow evening at 8:30 p.m., with a 2:30 p.m. matinee. Ticket prices are $5.75 for students and $1.50 for non-students.

Campus Surrounded By Thieves

The campus movie this weekend is the Alfred Hitchcock thriller, "To Catch a Thief." The film will be shown tonight and tomorrow evening at 7:30 p.m. in Opperman Auditorium. Admission is $5 for students, faculty, staff and their families. Set against the lush background of the French Riviera, the film features Cary Grant, Grace Kelly and Jessie Royce Landis. The Little Seminole Matinee Film Series will present the outstanding film version of Dickens' "David Copperfield."

Winner of a National Board of Review Award, the film features W. C. Fields, Freddie Bartholomew, Lionel Barrymore, Frank Lawton, Maureen O'Sullivan and Basil Rathbone.

Two comedies have also been scheduled for the 1:30 p.m. program tomorrow. Admission is $3.50 per person.

Understatement

Student Body President Jim Groot made somewhat of an understatement in his State of the Campus Address to the Summer Legislative Council Wednesday night.

After outlining numerous activities already completed this summer along with extensive plans and study committees for the remainder of the summer, Groot stated "The above mentioned activities combined with the regular duties incurred in the executive office give indications that this will be a busy summer for Student Government."

Undoubtedly if the plans as outlined are carried out (and this, of course, remains to be seen) Student Government will have one of the busiest summers in FSU history.

Among 12 special executive study committees listed by Groot, several are directly concerned with evaluation of existing SG programs and policies. If the committees function properly, we would urge the Legislative Council this summer and Senate in the fall to not take lightly the findings of these committees.

Another major part of Groot's speech dealt with nine legislative proposals. Although the Legislative Council can only make recommendations and draft legislation for Senate action in the fall, the unhurried atmosphere of the third trimester seems like a good opportunity for deeply probing matters which are often given too little concern and attention by Senate in the rat-race of the fall and spring trimesters.

We would therefore urge the Council to scrutinize closely Mr. Groot's proposals.

The President closed his address with an appeal to the Council members to help "erase the misunderstandings and confusion that exists in the minds of the students about... Student Government."

"Let us join hands, if not eagerly, at least sincerely, and forge ahead doing those things we have sworn to, those things which will benefit our students, our University and our state."

President Groot's words were eloquent, his actions during his first month in office commendable. It remains to be seen, however, whether even a politician of Mr. Groot's demonstrated ability can carry out some of the more grandiose schemes proposed by a long string of past student body presidents and re-proposed by Mr. Groot Wednesday night.

Good start, Mr. Groot, but we aren't convinced quite yet. We shall be watching to see if these "brave words" are followed by "brave deeds."

'Death Blow' For Boxing

"I am through, I quit, I will never again listen, watch, or read about professional boxing."

The above statement coupled with others such as, "Boxing stinks" and "They are all a bunch of crooks!" are being heard all over the U.S. today, and it is no wonder.

In Lewiston, Maine, Tuesday night in the first minute of the first round of the World Heavyweight Championship fight, professional boxing was dealt the final in a series of death blows. However, boxing did not meet its death as rapidly as the statement above makes it appear. It was a slow struggling death that took too many human victims along with it, some dead and others half-alive.

What killed boxing? It certainly was not just Cassius and Sonny. No, it was big-time gambling combined with the brutal and inhuman characteristics of the sport. Boxers became too strong, too quick and developed too many outside interests that somehow made losing as profitable as winning.

Will boxing be outlawed in the face of this latest farce? I doubt it, and as a matter of fact, I doubt that it should be outlawed. I think a better solution is already in effect, specifically, that people are not patronizing the sport.

It seems that boxing's largest number of fatalities have occurred within the ranks of the spectators. Not only has television left the sport, but the first crushing loss was probably felt when Madison Square Garden announced its decision to bring an end to its hosting of weekly fights. And the last crushing loss? Well, that takes us back to Tuesday night.

Other Problems

To the Editor:

I was very pleasantly surprised that my letter (Sign 18) was scooped by news that the legislation was, in fact, signed. This gesture may signify a new era of cooperation between the students and Westcott. We should consider what we can do now to encourage this spirit of re-organization.

It is important to consider the thorny community relations problem. Surely the deans realized, as they signed the bill, that powerful conservative elements would make trouble over sorries about wild parties.

If we are circumspect enough, our deans will grant other long overdue and sorely needed policy changes. The most important segment of public opinion is the attitude of students' parents. Tell your parents about some policy that lets you and ask them to write the Dean of Students. This sounds a bit indirect, but it is effective.

Above all, try to be realistic. Sure, I would like to have a parking space outside each of my classes; but on the other hand I would much prefer to spend that same money on scholarships, a new library, or more classroom space, because years from now the worth of my degree will depend on the academic reputation of FSU, and not on how easy it was to park there.

Looking for courses to take—courses that are different, somewhat of the run-of-the-mill basic studies type courses? Then try some of these.

If it's journalism you want then English Education 306, 307, 404 and 407 are for you. These courses give background in writing news, editorials, articles, headlines and copy editing.

Immediately after completion of all four courses you are awarded a hand-dandy, "I Spy" reporter kit complete with badge and fullfledged membership on either the "Flambeau," "Tally-Ho" or "Smoke Signals" staff.

A special note to future "Smoke Signals" editors—usually misunderstood in these courses are libel laws and ethical practices which might be useful in the future.

The sociology dept. offers for your enjoyment Sociology 308, race relations. Here racial interaction and racial problems are analyzed in a logical and sensible manner. Racialists and fanatics probably will be bored, but then maybe a member of SNCC and a Mississippi segregationist.

In Union Rathskeller

Soft Music, Dim Lights Promised

by JEROLYN HUNTER
Flambeau Staff Writer

Dim lights, soft music, and secluded booths will give an informal atmosphere to the new campus recreation center to be completed by January.

The center, named the FSU 'Rathskeller', will be a recreation room to take the place of the old Student Center where students would go to talk, dance, play ping pong or cards or just relax, said Harry P. Day, dean of students.

The 'Rathskeller' will be located in the bombshelter under the University Union Cafeteria.

The idea of converting the bombshelter into a 'Rathskeller' originated about four years ago. At that time there were no funds available so the idea was put aside until a later date.

Some surplus money was found in a landscaping fund for the Union last year. A committee of Union Board members including Patsy Burnham, Margaret Delhoff and Jean Norman set up definite plans for the center and a plea was made for additional money.

Twenty thousand dollars were appropriated from state funds for the project. Ralph Hurst, of the Arts Education Dept., designer of the Faculty Club, was asked to work on plans.

Under Hurst's plans the area will be divided into two storage areas for the food services.

The third area will be a dining room for the football players. The athletic dining room is presently located above the Seminole Club Cafeteria. The fourth area is the actual recreation room.

Each dancing area will have an overhead speaker from the juke box located by the door.

The speakers can be turned on and off individually so if only a few students are dancing, the music will not be loud anywhere except in their area.

A few tables will be placed along the edge of the room. Round booths will occupy the middle.

The booths are semi-enclosed with bamboo slats for privacy. They will seat about 10 people if necessary, and are movable if more dancing space is needed.

The ceiling and floor will be painted dark colors with soft lighting from behind wall panels. The Rathskeller will hold about 60 couples. The Union Program Committee is in charge of entertainment and they hope to have combo parties and folk-singing, said Tommy Garwood committee chairman.

IT'S EMPTY NOW

But it will someday be the FSU 'Rathskeller' which is tentatively scheduled to open January.

Big Fish Killer

Iron 'Tonic' May Be Red Tide Cause

Heavy rains, swollen coastal streams and the chemicals they carry to the sea, causing iron in the water to become soluble, are viewed with increasing suspicion as contributing to the occasional summer "blooms" of red tide which destroy millions of fish along Florida's west coast.

A chemical which is the same one fed in combination with iron to alewives to cure them of chlorosis is the culprit which has been singled out in the laboratory of Florida State University oceanographer William B. Wilson. It is a chelating chemical which converts such trace elements as iron into soluble form.

For a year and a half Wilson, working in the Oceanographic Institute, has been inoculating samples of sea water with the red tide organism, Gymnodinium breve.

He has experimented with 20 different chemicals or combinations of chemicals to determine which are most effective for survival and growth under ideal conditions of temperature and light.

The experiments are part of a broad-scale attack on the red tide problem. It is conducted by the Board of Conservation under its director of research, Robert Ingole, with a $125,000 a year appropriation provided by the 1963 legislature.

The chemicals all have been associated with red tide in previous research but Wilson's study showed a chelating chemical called EDTA was far and away the most important for survival of the organism.

Samples of sea water inoculated from red tide cultures in an FSU laboratory showed an 85 per cent survival rate of the organism when supplied EDTA, he said, while samples supplied both EDTA and iron had a survival rate of 90 per cent.

Most of the other chemicals or combinations resulted in less than 30 per cent survival. Organisms given EDTA subsequently grew most rapidly when supplied nitrogen and phosphorus.

Sea water is low in soluble iron, said Wilson, so any chelating chemical which enables the iron in sea water to become and remain soluble makes the iron available to an organism like Gymnodinium breve. Photosynthetic organisms such as the red tide organisms are known, moreover, to require iron.

Safety glasses saved Ned Hanson from possible blindness when a capacitor exploded in the industrial arts lab recently.

As a result of his caution, Hanson became the third member of the Wise Owl Club at FSU.

That a natural chelating agent must be present also was indicated in the study. Of the samples of sea water supplied by the Conservation Board monthly from nine stations between Cape Romano and Tampa Bay, 95% had no nutrients added.

In 16 samples, however, the organism survived. Twelve of the 16 were taken during August, September and October, a period during which runoff from streams normally is great.

Wilson said rains and heavy runoff long have been associated with occurrence of red tide along the Southwest Florida coast. Outbreaks in the past have been confined to that part of the coast south of Tarpon Springs, Sunday. Tickets are $.75 for students and $1.50 for non-students.

"THIEVES' CARNIVAL"

For those interested in Viet Nam, the Dominican Republic, Congress, the Presidency, Charles DeGaulle, Russia, the Chinas, etc., current-political problems is the class to take. In this class you can't give your opinion, say whom you dislike, why you don't like a particular bill before Congress, why the draft should be continued (or abolished) according to your situation.

Mississippi Downs FSU 6-3

Mississippi State opened the first game of the NCAA championships in Gastonia, North Carolina with a 10-hit, six-run win over the FSU Seminoles yesterday morning.

FSU jumped out to an early lead in the bottom of the first inning against Mississippi State. Dick Fernandez rapped the first pitch to left-center field for a single.

Monty McBryde was safe on first base on a Mississippi error. Tom Thomas drew a walk. Randy Brown smashed a single over the Mississippi pitcher's head driving in Fernandez and McBryde.

Gary Nichols walked. Nichols and Brown caught the State team napping successfully completing a double-steal. Nichols went to second while Brown scooted home for another Seminole score.

The game settled down to a pitcher's duel until the top of the sixth inning when Mississippi scored a run on a single by Bill Unser and a triple by pitcher Kenny Tatum.

Mississippi opened the seventh with a hitting barrage that sent FSU hurler Marv Stringfellow to the showers. Three consecutive singles by Mississippians loaded the bases with no one out.

Unser stepped to the plate and smashed a double to the left field fence clearing the bases making the score 4-3 after seven complete innings.

Mississippi added two more runs, one in the eighth inning and another in the ninth for a final score of 6-3.

Tribe Uses 23 Players Beating Pensacola Navy

The Seminole baseball team met the Goshawks of Pensacola Navy Monday afternoon on Seminole Field for a most unusual hall game.

The Navy team could have been re-named the Guinea Pigs for the afternoon's performance which saw them defeated by the Tribe 10-2. With Head Baseball Coach Fred Hatfield on the third-base line and Assistant Coach Ernie Lanford on the first-base line, the Seminoles pulled out all the stoppers in a "warm-up" game preceding their Gastonia game.

The Tribe used only 23 men in downing Pensacola Navy. Bob Wilcox was the only Seminole who saw action for the entire game, beginning in the outfield then moving to first base in the fifth inning.

The Tribe went four and two-thirds innings (and used three pitchers) before giving up a hit.

One of the biggest surprises of the day for the Tribe came early in the second inning. Pitch-hitting for pitcher Steve Marks, the "power" of the line-up stepped to the plate in the form of ace-left-handed pitcher Marv Stringfellow.

Stringfellow rapped the first pitch deep into right-center field for a sacrifice fly driving in the Tribe's third run of the afternoon.

Another three feet and the ball would have sailed out of the park. Hatfield used five pitchers, six outfielders, two catchers, eight infielders and three pinch-hitters. FSU's Pete Sarron, Maury Hopkins, and Bill Bearse each added a stolen base to his credit. Hopkins also hit a home run in the bottom of the third inning, driving in three runs.

Tribe first baseman Gary Nichols swung a hot bat, going three for three and collecting one RBI.

In overall statistics, Dick Fernandez (.355) leads the team in hits (49), runs (35), total bases (71) and second in RBI's with 29. Catcher Randy Brown and shortstop Hopkins share the home run honors with six each.

Brown has batted-in 32 runs and stolen 12 bases to lead the Seminoles in both department. Hopkins tied the school record for the most doubles in a season with nine. The Seminoles also set a previous record for the most victories in a season (26) and the most home runs (30).

The two or three-game series with the Gators is scheduled for next week.

Peterson Talks To Tribe Alumni

Head Football Coach Bill Peterson travels to Destin, Fla., Monday to meet with FSU alumni of Okaloosa County.

At a Memorial Day fish fry in the Destin Community Center at 7:30 p.m., Peterson will discuss the prospects of another winning season for the Seminoles.

His 1964 squad gave the nation a long look at the Seminole team when they went to the Gator Bowl and defeated Oklahoma 36-19. During the season the team went undefeated and unscored upon for the first six games.

Adding two more firsts to football history at FSU, the Seminoles defeated U of F for the first time and flankerback Fred Uleniokoff became FSU's first all-American.

A highlight of the meeting in Destin will include a sound and color movie of the Gator Bowl Classic. The presentation was arranged by Bernard Kelly, president of the Okaloosa FSU Alumni Club.

Kelly said all FSU alumni, their families and guests are welcome. The cost of the affair is $1 per person and tickets will be on sale at the door.

Gator Baseball Set Next Week

The Seminole "Nine" left for Gastonia, North Carolina, and the NCAA playoffs Tuesday. Upon publication of this article, the Tribe will have already faced its first and toughest opponent in the form of Mississippi State.

If the team defeated Mississippi, a win in the tournament and the right to compete in the national finals is almost a sure thing.

The outcome of Gastonia will decide more than just a berth in the finals at Omaha. It will also decide when the Seminoles meet the Gators in Tallahassee.

If the Tribe wins the tournament, they will compete with Florida Wednesday and Thursday of next week at 3 p.m. on Seminole Field.

If, however, the Tribe should lose to Gastonia, a three-game series is scheduled for next weekend with a single game beginning at 3 p.m. Friday and a Saturday double-header starting at 1 p.m. at Seminole Field.

OFF THE CUFF

...Observant announcer Mike Martin spotted Jeff Savage, academic advisor of athletics, warming-up his pitching arm in the Seminole bullpen before Monday's game. Picking up the microphone, Martin announced, "And the first relief pitcher for the 'Noles is Fireball Savage."

...To satisfy the many "umpires" in the stands, the scorekeeper announced in the top of the ninth inning that if the score remained the same, then according to rule 10, section 19, paragraph "g" of the baseball rule book, FSU's Steve Marks would get the win.

...Overheard on the FSU ambulance short-wave radio (at the beginning of the ninth inning), "You really for a cool one?"
